ON REALTY TAX RATE FOR NEXT FIVE YEARS WE'VE TURNED THE CORNER Confident Mayor Silent on How He

By MAURICE CARROLL New York City's real-estate tax rate will be "capped" for five years - right through the next mayoral term -- Mayor. Beame promised yesterday. But he declined to give details of how he intended to avert the customary annual rises in the tax rate, or to agree that a five-year-promise amounted to a dectaratioo that he would run for a second term.

After two years of carely relieved loom in public portrayal of the municipal economy. Mayor Beame said that he thought "we've turned the corner" and, to reassure the people who own homes and business properties that New York City would be a nice place to stay, he pledged stability in the taxes they would pay on their real estate.

The leveling off would help to strengthen the city's overall economy and to underline its attractiveness as a place to live and do business in. Mr. Beame indicated.

Cuts in Services Opposed He said that a freeze oo the real-estate tax rate would be accompanied by a determination not to cut further into the municipal services that were reduced as the fiscal crisis forced reductions in the city's spending. · · · · . Young Laotians Are Re-educated On Quiet Island

VIENTIANE, Laos, Dec. 12-Two hnurs north of here by road, the Nam Ngum River valley has been transformed into a vast lake studded with islands of submerged forest. The fishermen who work there sail between treetops stripped of leaves and branches jutting out of the blue water against a skyline of chud-capped mnuntains. Althnugh the Laotian Government eventually hopes to turn this sublime panorama into a tourist attraction, at present it has a more important role. The lake feeds the generators of the Nam Ngum dam, which supplies Vienti-ane and Northeast Thailand with power.

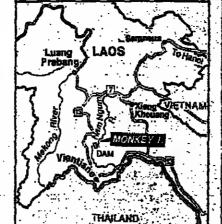

The authorities have also found a use for some of the islands. Sioce April of last year, four months after the Communists seized power, over 2,000 young people have been taken there for political "re-education."

Last month, 500 new recruits were rounded up in Vientiace and shipped to Monkey Island, which is actually three islaods, two for men and one for women. A Leading Lebanese Christian Hu In Third Attempt on Life This Ye

Special to The New York Tunes

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Dec. 12-The third attempt this year bas been made oo the life of Raymond Edde, the prominent ebanese Christian leader.

Shots were fired at the 62-year-old Mr. Edde as he was entering his home in the western part of Beirut late last night. He was slightly wounded in a leg. Elements of the Syrian-dominated Arab deterrent force who guard the nearby. radin station cordoned off the area and began investigating the incident. No arrests have been made yet.

The first attempt on Mr. Edde's life took place in May, and the second a mooth ago in the same spot. In each of the earlier incidents Mr. Edde was also injured in the leg-There was speculation that whoever was behind the action was trying only to frighten Mr. Edde, who was an unsuc-cessful presidential candidate early this year.

A Critic of Syria's Role

Mr. Edde, who heads the National Bloc Party, had refused to side with militant Christians during the civil war. He contin-ued to live in the Moslem-dominated west of Beirut. He has been a constant and outspoken critic of the Syriao involvement in the Lebanese crisis, especially Syria's large contribution to the Arab deterrent force.

Another shooting incident, in a Christian quarter today, was viewed as an at-tempt to assassinate Camille Chamoun, a top right-wing Christian leader aod a former president.

Chinese, Used to Bland News, Now Getting Sensations

By FOX BUTTERFIELD Special to The New York Times

HONG KONG, Dec. 12-For the Chinese people, accustomed to a bland diet of politically correct news aod en-tertainment, the last few mooths have brought a series of sensational press reports and radio hroadcasts. Of all these, perhaps the most melodramatic are a stream of recent broadcasts from

Hupeb Province in central

China China There, the local ra-dio asserts, supporters of Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's wife, and three other now-disgraced mem-bers of the Chinese Communist Party Politburo carried out a concerted campaign over the last few years to topple the regular provincial leadersbip. If the broadcasts can be believed, the dissidents, who called themselves the "rebels," set up their own opposi-tion provincial party committee, signed directives in its name nasted up wall directives in its name, pasted up wall posters calling for attacks on the offices of their enemies, organized work stoppages in factories and even beat up peasants and killed workers who opposed them.

According to the Hupeh radio, these "black hands" were invited to Peking to meet privately with Miss Chiang and Wang Hung-wen, another of the so-called Gang of Four, who promised to give them the post of first party secretary in the province. Miss Chiang and Mr. Weog then dispatched agents disguised as "reporters" and members of the ataff of Tsinghua University in Pek-ing, which they controlled, to coordi-nate the operation io Hupeh.

Conflict Among Party Officials The issue, as is true in many parts of China, was a conflict between younger party workers who had first been promoted in the Cultural Revolution of the latter 1960's and those older party and army veterans who had been purged in the Cultural Revolution and were subsequently rehabilitated. Several of the younger men seem to have been former workers in Wuhan, the capital of Hupeh.

With the antirightist campaign earlier this year, the dissidents stepped up their attacks oo the veterans, calling them "a returning legion" and "capitalist readers . . . to obtain our objectives, it is necessary to make the old rascals dizzy."

But after the Gang of Four was arrested in early October, the new chairman of the party, Hua Kuo-feog, was "extremely concerned about the problems of Hupeh" and called a special cooference in Peking to which the senior provincial leeders, all veterans. were invited. The upshot, it turns out, is that the commander of the Wuhan garrison has superseded the provincial party's first secretary in authority. In other words, some form of military control has heen established.

For young people, the death of Mao and the accession of Mr. Hua have so and the accession of Mr. Hua have so far brought no letup in the often un-popular policy of resettling urban school graduates in the countryside. Mao began the program in the Cultural Revolution to resolve the prob-blems of urban crowding and rural backwardness and to give young city people a taste of the hard-ship he and his earlier generation of Communists had experienced. A recent article in the Peking news-

A recent article in the Peking news-peper Kwangming Jih Pao diaclosed that two million more city youths had been sent into the country so far this been sent into the country so far this year. That is the same as last year's figure and hrings the total number of those resettled to 14 million, or more than one out of 10 urban residents. In some heavily industrialized cities, In some heavily industrialized cities, as many as 90 percent of all junior high and senior high school students are sent to rural areas.

In earlier years, despite some efforts by the Government to help with the difficult transition to farm lifa, there were frequent complaints. City youths found the peasants spartan and the food and housing inadequate. They could not work as bard as the local could not work as bard as the local peasant hoys and girls and so got fewer work points, food and money. Now Peking has evidently established a special office under the state council to try to insure hetter administration of the system. According to Kwengm-ing Jih Pao, a similar agency has been set up in each province.

With Miss Chiang consigned to po-litical purgatory, China's oew leaders are now rapidly reviving the memory of Mao's second wife, Yang Kai-bui, an early revolutionary martyr who was executed by the Chinese Nationalists in 1930. Two days ego the party paper. Jenmin Jih Pao, devoted its entire sec-ond page to articles commemorating Miss Yang as Mao's real love.

Excerpts From Bellow's Lecture

THE NEW YORK TIMES, MOLDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1976

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 12 (AP)-Following are excerpts from the text of the Nobel lecture of Saul Bellow:

There were European writers in the 19th century who would oot give up the connection of literature with the main human enterprise. The very sug-gestion would have shocked Tolstoy and Dostoyevsky.

But in the West a separation between great artists and the general public took place. They developed a marked contempt for the average reader and the bourgeois mass. The best of them saw clearly enough what sort of civi-lization Europe had produced, brilliant but unstable, vulnerable, fated to be overtaken by catastrophe, the historian Brich Anerbach talls us Erich Auerbach tells us.

Some of these writers, he says, pro duced "strange and vaguely terrifying works, or shocked the public by para-doxical and extreme opinions. Many of them took no trouble to facilitate the inderstanding of what they wrotewhether out of contempt for the public, the cult of their own inspiration, or a certain tragic weakness which pre-vented them from being at ooce simple and true."

In the 20th century theirs is still the main influence, for despite a show of radicalism and innovation our contemporaries are really very conseravtive. They follow their 19th-century leaders and hold to the old standard, interpreting history and society much as they were interpreted in the last century. Back to the Center

What would writers do today if it would occur to them that literature might once again engage those "central energies"—if they were to recognize that an immense desire had arisen for a return from the periphery, for what was simple and true?

I'am drawing attention to the fact that there is in the intellectual community a sizable inventory of attitudes that have become respectable-notions Few writers, even among the best, have taken the trouble to re-examice these attitudes or orthodoxies. Such attitudes only glow more powerfully m. Joyce or D.H. Lawrence than in the books of lesser men: They are everywhere and no one challenges them seriists have taken a second look at D.H. Lawrence, or argued a different view of sexual potency or the effects of industrial civilization on the instincts? Weary of Same Ideas

Literature has for nearly a century used the same stock of ideas, myth-, used the same stock of iders, myth, strategies. Essay after essay, book after book, confirm the most serious thoughts — Baudelarian, Nietzschean, Marxian, psychoanalytic, etc., etc.—of these most serious essayists. What Robbe-Grillet says about character can be said also about these ideas, mam-taining all the usual things about mass society, dehumanization and the rest. society, dehumanization and the rest. How weary we are of them.

How poorly they represent us. The pictures they offer no more resemble us than we resemble the reconstructed reptiles and other monsters in a museum of paleontology. We are much more limber, versatile, better articulat-ed, there is much more to us, we all feel it.

feel it. The essence of our real condition, the complexity, the confusion, the pain of it is shown to us in glimpses, in what Proust and Tolstoy thought of as "true impressions." This essence re-veals, and then conceals itself. When it goes away it leaves us again in doubt. But we never seem to lose our connection with the depths from which these glimpses come. The sense of our real powers, powers we seem to derive from the universe itself, also comes and from the universe itself, also comes and goes. We are reluctant to talk about this because there is nothing we can prove, because our language is inadequate and because few people are will-ing to risk talking about it. They would have to say "there is a spirit" and that is taboo. So almost everyone is aware of it: The value of literature lies in these intermittent "true impressions." A novel moves back and forth between the world of objects, of actions, of ap-pearances, and that other world from which these "true impressions" come and which moves us to believe that the good we hang onto so tenaciously —in the face of evil, so obstinately—is no illusion of it. no illusion.

Youth Unemployment Is Raising Fears in Europe

million in the 16-to-25 age group unemployed.

There has been a significant increase, furthermore, in the number of youths out of work for relatively long periods, sug-gesting, in the words of the Common Market's Executive Commission in Brussels, "development of a hard core of longterm unemployed people."

Richard O'Brien, chairman of the British Manpower Commission, says: "Lack of a job early in one's working life means that one misses the vital formative ex-perience of work, the essential disciplines of working life which we take for grant-ed. In short, there is a danger of making unemployables of our unemployed."

Though not as high as in the United States, unemployment totals in the Com-mon Market have already reached levels unseen since the Depression of the 1930's. Unemployment in the United States is 7.1 million, or 7.5 percent of the work force, compared with 4.75 in Western Europe. In the United States 2.1 million of those unemployed are under the age of 25.

Among social forces tending to work to the disadvantage of young job seekers is the position held by union leaders on both sides of the Atlantic that their prin-cipal responsibility is protection of those Another is the attitude of corporate managers. With mounting social obliga-tions, accepted at the insistence of governments and unions, managers have found that workers, once hired, are difficult and expensive to let go. This makes them generally wary about recruiting new workers.

Machines Are Preferred

Against the backdrop of contracting labor needs and rising labor costs, company managers now prefer, even when openings do arise, to acquire a machine if possible rather than hire men and women. "There is too much similarity for comfort between what happened in the north-ern cities of the United States and what is happening here," commented The Guardian after West Indian carnival riots late last August in the Kensington borough of London. West Indian teen-agers, many of them jobless, fought running battles with the police for two days. More than 100 people were arrested and more than 200 injured.

In Brixton, another section of London with a large West Indian population, Courtney Laws, a black leader, receives a reporter in the bare offices of the Brixton Community Neighborhood Associa-tion, declaring: "Youth unemployment has grown so much in Brixton that it is now genuinely, reflected in delinquency, crime and antisocial behavior," Demonstrations in the streets of Paris are also flashing warnings about the ex-plosive character of youth memployment. Twice in recent months marchers have been called out to protest the rising number of unemployed youths.

In the spearhead of these and other demonstrations are teen-agers who chant: "The only solution is revolution!"

Though the grinning demonstrators still appear more self-conscious than defiant and though they rarely clash with the police, the words cannot entirely be dismissed in France, with its history of peri-missed in France, with its history of per-odic revolutions and its worker-student uprising in the spring of 1968. The gravity of the situation is under-scored in talks with such officials as a top French central banker, who emotion-ally observes after a particularly block assessment of monetary and financial conditions: "Unemployment threatens to erode the foundations of our democratic institutions."

An employment officer in Brussels speaks of jobs for youths as "the great moral issoe facing our democracies."

It becomes a question of civilization strasse-five minutes from the Reeper-bahn red light district-for motorcycle gangs of leather-jacketed youths, most without gainful employment, many with police records. The center has twice-weekly "contact" sessions, helps the youths get jobs and tries to divert them from the violence sets. Dennis Stevenson of the British Nationtionally the emphasis since World War II had been on job creation. Policy shifts, the latest recession, demographic forces and other influences have already sharply reduced the number of jobs. Bernard Meriaux of the French Planning Commission says that it will take until 1980 before his country has matched the job level of 1973. West Germany, Britain and Italy also have a good deal of catching up to do. But only West Germany, of major countries in Europe, has the ability at the moment to expand its conomy. This is because of its relative success in fighting inflation-prices have risen by less than 4 percent over the last 12 months.

More Looking for Work

While the number of jobs has been falling, the number of youths looking for work has been rising.

For the nine Common Market countries, according to a study by the Brussels Executive Commission, the number of those looking for jobs will increase by two million between 1976 and 1980, reflecting demographic factors - more youths entering the labor market while fewer older workers reach retirement age. To keep up with the employment demand, the commission's study estimates, the number of jobs available would have to grow by 7 to 8 percent by 1980. Present prospects make such growth enlikely. There will be better times perhaps by

1985, the study continues, as youths born in years of low birth rates, since 1968, start moving into the labor market. For today's teen-agers that is a long time to Based on current economic prospects job conditions will probably get worse. All European governments have given top priority to fighting inflation. Greece and Turkey Pose Problems for Carter

The main reason American policy has enated both allies has been a lack of ordination between the executive and gislative branches. By 1974, Washington id a long record of supporting the miliry junta that ruled Greece for seven ars. When the junta oeposed President akarios of Cyprus and provoked the urkism invasion of the island, Greeks anned Washington—fairly or unfairly r not having stopped the disaster.

The embargo has been eased in recent. onths, But Turkey is oow demanding "embargo-proof" agreement that puld provide more than $1 billion in 1 over four years. That accord was inpduced in Congress last summer but lled to pass, partly because Greece anted a similar deal but refused to conude negotiations before the Presideotial ections.

Now that Mr. Kissinger's tenure is end-2, the mood in the eastern Mediterraan seems slightly improved. 'Wounded Turkish Pride

One Greek official recently called the nbargo counterproductive on the ground at it "wounded Turkish pride" and ade the Turks more rigid. Prime Minisr Constantine Caramanlis has told veral visitors recently that a conciliatoi approach toward Turkey might be lore effective.

Accordingly, Athens has agreed to open egotiations with Ankara over their conlicting claims to explore for oil in the vegean Sea. In the past, Greece Insisted hat the matter be settled by the Internaional Court of Justice.

ional Court of Justice. Turkey has also tried to improve the itmosphere by agreeing to refrain from esearch in the disputed Aegean areas. Ankara's decision last summer to send a research vessel into these areas exacerpried tensions and spurred a new round of costly arms purchases.

Analysts do not expect quick results rom these talks, mainly because Turkish lections are to be held by next October nd any agreement before then would nake Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel ulnerable to political attack. In the reantime, diplomats in both capitals will by to keep tensions down, do some roundwork on the issues, and hope that ne elections will produce a strong govrnment capable of making decisions.

Carter Backs Aid Packages

Mr. Carter says be supports the pending id packages for both countries. His first ask in this area will be to get the Greek 'eal signed and then pilot them both hrough Congress.

His biggest obstacle is Cyprus, where total stalemate continues. American oficials still hope that Turkey will make some good-will gesture to soften Congresionl hostility, but that is highly unlikely.

A balanced policy between Greece and furkey can only succeed if both countries show flexibility toward each other, Otherrise, the old antagonisms will rise again, both sides will start demanding total oyalty, and the Carter administration will get caught in the same pinch as its predecessor.

Twin Italian Liners Are Sold to Iran

GENOA, Italy, Dec. 12 (AP)—The twin luxury liners Michelangelo and Raffaello, once the pride of Italy's passenger fleet, have been sold to Iran, it was announced today by officials of the state-controlled shipping line. The sale price was not announced, but published reports put the figure at $35 million, compared with the construction cost in 1963 of $145 million. An announcement said the liners would be transferred to Iran after being renovat-ed to serve as floating hotels. The work is expected to take about six months.

BLACK RHODESIAN LEADER U.S. Jets Join in Celebration

IS WELCOMED BY 200,000

SALISBURY, Rhodesia, Dec. 12 (Reu-ters)—A hlack Rhodesian leader, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, was greeted by more than 200,000 cheering and chanting sup-porters today when he arrived in the black township of Highfield from the Rhodesia conference in Geneva.

His reception at the headquarters of the United African Council was said by officials to have been even more ecstatic than the one afforded him when he re-turned from self-imposed exile last September.

After being cheered for more than 40 minutes, the bishop accused Prime Minis-ter Ian D. Smith of being "fanatically glued" to the so-called Kissinger package of proposals for Rhodesia, and of employ-ing delaying tactics in Geneva.

In a statement to reporters, he denied that he had returned to Salisbury to seek a new mandate for his delegation, and he accused other hlack nationalists in Geneva of attempting to impose a govern-ment on Rhodesia without free elections.

Soviet-Libyan Talks Hailed

TRIPOLI, Libya, Dec. 12 (Reuters)— Libya's Revolutionary Command Council today hailed the first visit of their leader, Col Muammar el-Qaddafi, to Moscow last week as a "significant event in the histo-ry of Arab-Saviet relationships," the Libyan press agency reported.

Of Kenya's Independence Day NAIROBI, Kenya, Dec. 12 (UPI)-United States Marine Corps jets flew over the capital today to celebrate the 13th anniversary of Kenya's independence and show America's growing commitment to this East African nation. President Jomo Kenyatta ordered the realease of 10,000 prisoners, one-third of Kenya's prison population, as a good-will gesture for the independence festivities. The Marines, based aboard a three-ship United States force berthed in the strategic port of Mombasa, made up the first American military unit to take part in a public ceremony in Kenya. It was the third time this year that the United States has signaled its growing military involvement in the former British colony. Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld agreed six months ago, subject to Con-gressional approval, to sell Kenya 12 supersonic F-5 fighters.

The United States also sent a naval force to steam off the Indian Ocean coast last summer in a show of solidarity with last summer in a show of solidarity with Kenya when a war with neighboring Uganda threatened: In two visits to Africa this year, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger conferred at length with Presi-dent Kenyatta.

Redskins Top Politics As Capital's No.1 Topic

By ROBERT REINHOLD recial to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12-Some say Washington is a one-game town-pol-itics. But it is really a two-game town. The other game is football, and it is much easier to understand.

much easier to understand. For the last several days, news of the Presidential transition has The Talk taken a back seat to that of other local passion, the Washington Redskins, who barreled their way to a playoff berth today by de-feating the Dailas Cowboys, 27 to 14. The victory came after a fretful week-end for local fans in which the team's aging and volatile quarterback, Billy Kilmer, was picked up for drunken Kilmer, was picked up for drunken driving, producing an article that was splashed across page 1 of The Wash-ington Post today.

At Duke Ziebert's restaurant ,a major hangout for politicians and sportsmen, the scene was pandemonium after the Redskins won a dramatic last-quarter victory. Mel Krupin, the manager, served as cheerleader for 30 or 50 reg-ulars at the bar. "Everybody was going

"It was unbelievably exciting." The game capped a turnultuous cas-cade of news events that began the other day when Mr. Kilmer, pressed by a young and popular would-be successor, Joe Theismann, flew off the handle and denounced the press, the fans and his hard-driving coach, George

Mr. Kilmer, who led the Redskins' victory today, had declared that be was tired of serving as "whipping boy" for the press and challenged two local sportswriters to a "punch-out." The reporters demurred, preferring to punch typewriter keys. Mr. Kilmer theo threatened to quit the team. Mr. Allen, inturn, placed the blame for it all on the press for printing ton much 'negative stuff."

By last week the affair had reached such a fever pitch that it broke out on the editorial page of The Washington Post, normally reserved for weighty matters of state. "What of the children in the audience-children who tend to make heroes out of players and coaches as well?" asked The Post. "What kind of character is being oullt into them as they watch their heroes whine and whimper over a sportswriter's few critical words? Are we in danger of raising a new generation of soreheads ---even more sour in victory than in defeat?' One keen sports fan, also an observer One keen sports fan, also an observer of international politics, offered this interpretation: "Allen is the Henry Kissinger of the Washington sports workd. He expects the press to go along with his line. The difference is that Kissinger is subtle and subverts the press. Allen is trying to hammer them over the head."

Indeed, such is the similarity between sports and government that local wags have suggested that Mr. Kissinger take over as head of the Redskins and President Ford as commissioner of baseball when they leave office oext month. Un-fortunately for Mr. Kissinger, at least, the Redskins are already in Democratic hands, since they are beaded by Ed-ward Bennett Williams, the lawyer and Democratic majordowo

Democratic major-domo.

This is the best of times, this is the worst of times in the capital. The town is alive with fresh-faced, scrubbed young people sent by the President-elect and fired with optimism about what government can accomplish deelect and fired with optimism about what government can accomplish de-spite years of cynicism and political rot. The town is also crawling with other, less attractive species: the job bunters, favor seekers, name droppers, snivelers and apple polisbers who always seem to come to the surface when the political waters of Washing-ton are churned up.

Joseph A. Califano, the Washington lawyer and confidant of President Johnson, told a reporter some months ago, "Washington will love whomever wins, especially if he's a Democrat." Mr. Califano's prophecy is already coming true. The principal of the public school In downtown Washington where Amy Carter will attend fourth grade reports that she bas been getting 10 to 15 calls a day from parents who want to send their children to the suddenly famous school, in what is now a downtown business section. Many, she says, are from the suburbs and they offer to pay more than $1,000 a year in tuition for the privilege of busing their children downtown to rub shoulders with the President's daughter.

There is no little irony in this. For years whites have been fleeing Washington's public schools, now almost all black, for the suburbs, Stevens Elementary, Amy's future school, was nearly closed recently for lack of pupils. So it must make the school's principal, Lydia Williams, feel good to be able to tell the callers that enrollment is limited to neighborbood children.

Hundreds of erstwhile Southerners, meanwhile, bave sprung to the defense of the new administration against what they felt was a scurrilous depiction of Southern ways by Pat Olipbant, The Wasbington Star newspaper cartoonist. It took the form of a nearly full-page cartoon beaded 'Fowah Mo' Years..." The cartoon showed the White House grounds littered with beer cans, old tires and a wrecked car with an open hood. There was even a rickety outhouse on the side.

The rest of the cartoon offered Mr. Oliphant's image of the new Washington under Southern influence. Sans Souci, the fashionable French restaurant near the White House, had erected a flashing "EATS" sign over the door and added such items to the menu as "Grits du jour en fathack" and "Le Possumbelly Georgienne." And the carton showed a saleswoman at Bloomingdale's standing by as a matron tried on a frumpy blouse, bouseskirt, combat boots and a hig bonnet. "Let me assure modom that this is what Miss Lillian herself is wearing this season," the saleswoman said.

A Washington bakery dressed its window with gingerbread display of Plains, Ga., hometown of the President-elect

An avalanche of invertive has landed on The Star's doorstep. "Vicious and distateful," wrote Lawrence B. Browne of Leesburg, Va. "It takes a sick man to think such vulgar and disrespectful things about another human being," complained George and June Beadle of Bowie, Md.

Beadle of Bowne, Md. "Yall have gone jest a mite too fer," wrote Charles R. Patterson from Sea-hrook, Md. "Them funny pitures in thet thar newspaper y'all made aint really so dern funny and we-uns is a bit het up about it. Looks as tho yo's tryin to say we-all jes dont fit in the DC soshul wburl. Well—could be y'alls right cuz some of us country boys is right curz some of us country boys is got caluses on our hands-bofum. Then comes from hard work. Jes wouldn't fit in up ther."

The telephone is the subject of another fashionable game played in Washington. The idea is to get a call from either Jimmy Carter or Vice Presi-dent-elect Walter F. Mondale. According to some of the recipients, Mr. Carter was on the line himself when they picked up the receiver. The purpose of the calls is to get names for top posts in the new administration. This in turn allows the recipient to become a caller and say, "Twe been asked to put together some names for the Canter cabinet.

The New York Th

Mr. Mondale, "Fritz" to friends, makes lots of calls too, but the recipi-ents say he is usually not on the line himself when they pick up the phone.

Washington is a cruel town. If everybody is waiting for calls from the new power wielders, hardly anybody has any interest in the lame-duck incumbents. The once daily press briefings at the White House are now given only on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Whereas 40 or so reporters used to show up to get the news from Ron Nessen, President Ford'a press secre-tary, the briefings now. attract only about two dozen, many of them second stringers. The first-string White House correspondents are down in Plains, Ga., sitting at the feet of the new leader. Mr. Nessen'a successor at the press office, Jody Powell, is settling in. He and his wife, Nan, are moving into a rented house on Foxhail Road. It is not one of the estates in that section. The house, which has an enclosed porch and two baths and rents for $700 a month, has only two distinguishing features, according to Mrs. Powell, who said, "It's less than 10 minutes from the White House and it's located in a good public school district." a good public school district."

Rather than risk trouble, Mrs. McKellar, bit surprised but not overly annoyed, decided to make the necessary improve-ments. The city inspector wanted her to replace several pieces of ceiling tile in the basement that had been removed in a recent remodeling, move an electric outlet from a closet and into the open area of a small bedroom-two outlets are required in each bedroom-and "point up" a few places on the masonry steps of the back porch.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12 (AP)-Fathia Ghali, sister of Egypt's late King Farouk, has been shot to death in her apartment and her estranged husband has been booked for investigation of murder, the police said.

The husband, Riad Ghali, 56 years old, fired a builet into his head after Mrs. Ghali was shot, officers said. He remained in stable condition today at the U.C.L.A. Medical Center.

The body of the 45-year-old former Princess, whose love for Mr. Ghali caused royalty to drop her, was found Friday by her son, Rafik. The police said she had been shot in the head. Sources said the husband, from whom Mrs. Ghall separated in 1965, was upset over the family's dire financial condition.

Mrs. Ghali shared her West Los An-geles apartment with her mother, 31-year-old Nazli Fuad, once the Queen of Egypt: ···

In September, Mrs. Ghali's jewels were taken into a Los Angeles bank-ruptcy court. A lawyer said Mrs. Ghali hoped to raise $500,000 from them. With a high bid at the courtroom sale of only $180,000, the receiver was granted permission to attempt a private sale of the jewels.

The former Princess and Mr. Ghali were married in 1950. King Farouk stripped his sister and their mother of their titles because the Moslem ruler disapproved of the marriage to Mr. Ghali, a diplomat who was both a Christian and a commoner.

Federal Study Hints Ratio Is Highest in the Country Is Highest in the Country

DETROIT, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Federal study indicates that Detroit leads the nation in proportion of heroin users, with 30,000, or about one in every 41 resileots, having a habit. Other studies indicate there may be more than 50,000 heroin users in the city more than 50,000 heroin users in the city with habit costs ranging from $5 to $1,500 a week, and that Detroit leads the nation in heroin-related deaths. City health officials say the studies suggest that Detroit's heroin use has grown at least tenfold since 1971, when 3,000 cases were listed.

One of the latest reports comes from Dr. Robert L. DuPont, director of the Na-tiocal Institute on Drug Abuses, who re-ported last week that there are 30,000 addicts in Detroit and 40,000 in the netropolitan area.

Under an institute study, hospital emergency rooms in 23 cities were asked to keep records on whether a history of heroin use was either mentioned by patients or found by doctors in their treat eots.

The report said one reason that New York, with its vast population, had fewer such deaths, was because the New York addict population had shifted to the legally available heroin substitute, methadone.

Books of The Times In the Company of Giants By JOHN LEONARD

PICASSO'S MASK. By André Malraux. Translated and Annotated by June Guicharnaud with Jacques Guicharnard. IUustratod, 273 pages. Holt, Rinehart and Winston. $10.

~ The Houston Past

-SI. Louis Rost-Dispatch

It's as if André Malraux had left a tape-recorder running while he walked around the Museum Without Walls inside his own skull. The transcript is this headcheese of a book, back and forth in the time of his life and in the time of art, opening and sbutting closets-inside this one, the Little Man from the Cyclades with his violinshaped idol, inside that one a black Aztec death's head-with constant interruptions by Picasso, non sequiturs, clunky aphorisms, critical insights, jabs in the eye, moonings about the unknowable, essays on courage, gushes of knowable, essays on courage, gushes of memory. "Picasso's Mask," the third volume of his autobiography, after "Anti-Memoirs" and "Felled Oaks," is exasperating. But like everything else he wrote, it is agaiting too." What company the man kept until his, death jast month And how odd that Mao, with whom he bad so many portentous chars in "Felled Oaks." should have died in the same year. If portentous chats in: "Felled Oaks," should have died in the same year. If his conversations with Picasso sound more pellevable than those with Mao, it may be because we know from other memory that Picasso actually talked this way, in moody fidgets, sometimes the child, sometimes the theory-mon-ger. Malraux himself, is consistent in the soletinity he brings, like a cowbell tied to his neck, to every encounter with the great and near-great. No idle gossip here.

with the great and near-great. No lite gossip here. To Chagall: "Don't you believe that there is a second shadow?" To André Breton: Do you know where the religious center of the Hopi Indians was? . . Los Alamos." To Yehudi Menuhin and Nadia Bou-langer: "When the Asians heard our great musicians they got the impres-sion that the daepest emotion felt by Europeans was nataleia." Europeans was nostalgia."

Fun and Names

S8.95

Bobbs-Merrill

These conversations are more fun when people talk back. Menuhin and Boulanger, for instance, disagree with the Asians. "I'd say it was praise, not nostalgia," says Menuhin. And when Malraux tells Picasso, "When the Con-Malraux tells Picasso, "When the Con-nétable de Bourbon captured Rome his archers chose as their target The School of Athens." Picasso replies. "They didn't like Raghad, was that The They were already Cubists." Malraux, though, is unstoppable, going on: "For months all the characters—Plato, who was in fact a portrait of Leonardo da Vinci, and some other Greek, who was in fact a portrait of Michelangelo, and all the rest of them. had arrows stuck in their eyes. Great scene for a film." But some people don't want to talk But some people don't want to talk

But some people don't want to take back: "A few days before, when I had asked Rouault what he thought of Poussin, he was chillingly evasive." Or: "The first time I ever saw Utrillo was. "The first time I ever saw Utrillo was. "at a Montmartre grocery woman's house Wild-looking he was, with a fantastic gorilla at his side. His vocabulary at that point was limited to two words. Lifting his very heavy eyelids outo a desolate void, he asked me, 'Painter, or poet?' sat down, and vent to sleep."

A lot of this can be exasperating, and there is a lot of it in "Picasso's Mask." The style, 'too, exasperates, having gone blowsy and baroque. Andperhaps we've heard enough of the Museum Without Walls, that juxtaposing of the ages of art to argue against death, in bebalf of "the revolt against man's fate." "the sacred, the supernatural, the unreal." We are as familiar with his theories of metamorphosis as we are with his own many metamorphoses, the series of selves he invented. And yet the excitement is here as well. There is much on the genius of Picasso, his vital Negro period, those last terots, the appropriating of the demons and fetishes and fertility figures and spider-dreams of the anony-mons past in the service of an aggressive art of the future. There is a superb appreciation of Takanobu's "Portrait of Taira no Shigemori" a 12-century Japanese masterpiece I curse myself for never having seen—an appreciation that calls into question most of the assumptions of Western art, from perspective on.

Men of La Mancha

There is also a preoccupation with death. The inscription of Thebes is ever with him: "Listen to the procession of the dead, buzzing like bees" Fac-ing it, one must wear e mask, signify-ing man, ordaining a soul. One finds, and tells to Quisting and talks to, Quixotes. There is nothing turns of politics or The termination of the superi-literature, only a fleeting reference to "Man's Hope," none at all to the superi-or "Man's Fate," and some glimpses of his career as a bureaucrat of culture: commissioning designs from André Masson and Chagall for the ceilings of the Théâtre de l'Odéon and the Paris Opéra, wanting to plant Picasso's bronze statue of "The Reaper" on the promontory of the lle Saint-Louis as a monument to Baudelaire's "Fleurs du Mal." Was this the way for an existentialist swashbuckler to fade out, in the arms of de Gaulle?

And what if his cherished Museum Without Walls turns out to be a tourist trap? What if the ages of art, in the form of snapshots and facsimiles, end up in the form of souvenirs, in a gift they to show the children and our friends, when we come back from the museum to our everyday iconography of oil rigs and neon and Coke bottles and parody? What if it ends up quaint, instead of wondering and wondrous? No matter Mutation and continuity are both necessary to metamorphosis. Malraux's books are in my museum. And if I'm disappointed in his last in-vention of himself-did he have to be vention of himself-did he have to be pompous?-there are all the others to keep me company, and he earned the right, and one by one the ones who earned that right are gone, until it seems there won't be anybody left to talk to who is worthy of wearing the mask.

Stimulating the Economy

A consensus is forming on the size, composition and timing of the fiscal stimulus needed to get the national economy moving ahead and thereby to reduce unemployment. Mr. Carter's transition staff and the chief executives of fifteen major corporations have offered the President-elect remarkably similar plans combining three basic elements: personal tax cuts, tax incentives for business investment and Federal spending increases focused on the jobless.

There are indeed some differences between the proposals. Ironically the husinessmen's fiscal package is larger than that of Mr. Carter's economists-$23 billion against $20 hillion. The husiness executives want the personal income tax cuts to be permanent, while the Carter staff recommends that part of the cut he a rebate on 1976 taxes and part a reduction on 1977 tax liabilities.

Mr. Carter's staff has offered several options to spur business investment in new equipment. The husinessmen were divided among themselves on whether the investment tax credit should be raised permanently or temporarily. Some held that a temporary increase would be more likely to accelerate capital spending. The transition staff and husiness executives both called for $5 billion in various job-creating programs.

From these proposals Mr. Carter should be able to construct a program to attack the short-run economic slowdown without unduly sacrificing long-run tax revenues. To achieve that purpose, he ought to accept his staff's plan of combining tax rebates on this year's income with lower tax withholding from next year's income. This would also seem safer than putting all his eggs in the one basket of a single tax rebate.

While economic research indicates that increases in

"permanent income" have a higger effect on consumer spending than temporary increases (resulting from temporary tax cuts), there is no evidence that temporary tax cuts have no effect at all. Increasing the fiscal package to achieve the desired short-run effect makes more sense than sacrificing revenues permanently-and with them hopes of funding future welfare reform, health care, housing and other social programs, facilitating tax reform and achieving hudgetary halance.

For this reason, we think Mr. Carter would siso he well advised to propose tax incentives for husiness investment that promise to deliver early returns without permanently surrendering future tax. revenues.

The tax-cutting approach has been sharply criticized by Professor John Kenneth Galbraith and others who helieve that the whole fiscal stimulus needed to end the slowdown ought to be focused on the expenditure side of the budget. There is, indeed, strong reason to concentrate public expenditures directly on job-creating programs-and Mr. Carter has indicated he will give priority to that approach. But putting the entire fiscal program into wage subsidies for private employment and public-service jobs might delay and dissipate the impact on the private economy and require huge additional infusions of Federal money.

Given Mr. Carter's hope of spending the more than four hundred hillion dollars already in the Federal hudget more effectively, we believe it would be unwise to use the entire fiscal package to increase total Federal spending and thereby ease the pressure for economizing and reordering priorities in the existing Federal budget.

Arms Sales Momentum

There were few subjects on which Jimmy Carter spoke with greater feeling during the Presidential campaign than of the urgent need to curb "the almost completely unrestricted sales" of United States arms to other countries. Yet the Ford Administration in its final weeks Is taking a number of actions in line with the policies that have established this country as the world's leading arms merchant, with annual sales over $10 hillion.

Any Administration runs partly on momentum and President Ford must continue to govern until Mr. Carter takes the oath; but in keeping with the incumbent's promise of a smooth transition be ought to put off decisions that could embarrass or compromise his successor. A case in point is the authorization given by the State Department to an American company to try to sell jet fighter-bombers to India. Even this first step in the sale process-a license to the McDonnell-Douglas Aircraft Corporation to make its nitch represents a turnabout in American policy which has hitherto banned arms sales to the increasingly repressive Government of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi. If the sales of the A-4 Skyhawk planes materialized, the transaction would inevitably provoke alarm in Pakistan and intensify that country's pressure on the United States for more sophisticated aircraft.

Only a few days after the November election, it became known that the United States Navy was supporting a projected $4 hillion sale by the Northrop Corporation of a land-based model of a new Navy jet fighter plane to Iran. A week later, giving the formal notification now required by law, President Ford declared the Sudan eligible to huy American arms and said such sales "will strengthen the security of the United States and promote world peace." We commented only a few days ago on the Administration's abortive agreement to furnish President. Marcos's authoritarian regime in the Philippines with

Transition: Foreign-Policy 'Idiocies'

To the Editor:

At least three recent developments in international affairs indicate the compelling need to re-survey fundamentals of American foreign policy postures and processes which have distorted the American self-image and stunted the growth of American international influence during thirty years. There is the effort of Dr. Kissinger to buy Greco-Turkish mutual accommodation hy giving a short billion to Greece and four billion to Turkey (which has four times the population of Greece) in a sloppy effort to "aid the defense against Communism" and 10 "steady NATO." There is the offer to give SI hillion to the Philippines over a fiveyear period in return for the use of hases. A third item is the unconscionable waste of the B-1 bomber construction, a peculiarly profligate effort to steady the job market for aerospace civilians and the overprivileged in the Pentagon.

The logic that mutual defense pacts" --- presumably designed to defend smaller natioos from Russians and Chinese-are of no benefit, really, to the locals and therefore must be paid for entirely by the United States, with profits provided to local real-estate owners, can only be termed absurd. The attempt to buy peace between other nations by the U.S. taxpayer's huying off both sides is madness: It is especially designed to perpetuate overbalanced American budgets, to: provide illusory and inflationary economic henefits to overseas areas and to assure American disruption and interference in shaky overseas econom-

The obvious and unfortunate waffling hy Mr. Carter on the B-1 bomber indicates the high probability that these foreign policy idiocies designed and promoted by the "Eastern Establishment" of both (or neither) political parties for thirty years will continue in monotony and futility.

One of the few clear-cut policy differences between Mr. Ford and Mr. Carter was an assurance hinted at or stated by Mr. Carter that review of American foreign military and diplomatic presumptions and policy fundamentals would be undertaken following a Carter victory. The greatest loss to sanity during the next four years would be ongoing commitment to the perceptions of international relations ingrained in those fine folks who gave us Vietnam, Chile, Russian-dominated Cuba, right-wing dictatorships in Latin America, Southeast Asia and elsewhere -among other gems-and above all an insatiable and ever-growing white elephant in the Pentagon.

There is a gnawing fear that Mr. Carter will ignore the need and the public demand of the less articulate for a reassessment of the causes of thirty years of fumbling which cannot be casually blamed on the ment Slavic Marxists or the confused Maoists,

How to Redirect a Bureaucracy

To the Editor:

Jimmy Carter recognizes, I am sure, that reorganization of government hureaucracies is a costly enterprise in terms of dislocating ongoing operations and the expenditure of the political capital of a new President. David. Rosenbaum's piece, "Is a Ra-tional Bureaucracy a Rational Goal?" (Week in Review, Nov. 28) is too pessimistic, however. In arguing that attempts st reorganization are never ideal or final solutions he recognizes that reorganization is never for eternity. But the advantages of reorganization, whether through the creation, elimination or modification of agencies, can be considerable. Aside from their value in allowing a new President greater latitude in personnel selection; they allow a chief executive. whether mayor, governor or President. to highlight his concept of public priorities and redirect the energies of the hureaucracy."

While the symbolism of reorganization may often be lost in the unsuccessful implementation of management reform, a criticism not without hasis in assessing Mayor Lindsay's peragencies of vesteryear. New Yorkers would stand to benefit from at least the following changes in the Federal hureaucracy:

(4) Redefinition of the role of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (and possibly renaming) to deal with Federal-local government relations on a national scale, including

$500 million in arms, and on earlier arms deals with Spain, Turkey and Greece.

These actions may be a case of an Administration continuing to do what has become all too natural in recent years. But the President and his aides cannot be unaware of the President-elect's strong feelings about what he regards as indiscriminate and excessive arms sales. They ought to take greater care to freeze a policy that could cause serious problems for the incoming Administration and trouble for the United States.

The Cutting Edge

Under fire from students who charged that their education was "irrelevant," many college faculties and administrations in the turbulent 1960's beat a hasty retreat and abandoned most course requirements. Viewed initially as a triumph of student freedom, the absence of a firm framework of study has begun to be recognized, even by many undergraduates, as an abdication of institutional responsibility and a detriment to effective education.

There are encouraging signs that a counterrevolution is now gathering force. Concerned academicians are trying to chart a new course of liberal learning.

The revolt against the old requirements was frequently justified by the stagnation that had turned mandated courses into a bore for students and teachers alike. Many of the courses undergraduates were compelled to take treated students as a captive audience, allowing academic departments to build overstaffed empires, without sufficient concern for the quality of instruction. Yet the absence of requirements signals a dangerous retreat from the common ground shared hy educated men and women. At a time of extreme pressures towardepecialization and early career decisions, lack of consensus on the basic intellectual underpinning needed by college graduates only reflects a fragmented society whose élite of talent will find communication ever more difficult.

Fortunately, a number of leading institutions have begun the search for new definitions of a cohesive program of general education. Henry Rosovsky, dean of Harvard's faculty of arts and sciences, has initiated a crusade against an education that has "no common denominator." Harvard, which in the 1940's codified the then prevalent idea of general education, is once again trying to list specific fields in which students ought to have "informed acquaintance."

Columbia, which has never given up on certain hasic courses in the humanities, hopes that the rest of academia may once again be persuaded to acknowledge that some of the "great books" remain indispensable to those who claim to be educated.

The issues and the emphasis in any new core curriculum call for an open mind on the part of those who attempt to chart tomorrow's liberal education. The world is no longer bounded, as critics of the old approach have rightly charged, hy the region between Athens and California. The non-Western world cannot he ignored. An understanding of science and technology cannot be left to the engineers. Knowledge of the urban condition and environment is crucial.

There has been a tendency to blame politicians too exclusively for their narrow view of America's future, The range of a self-governing nation's vision is not primarily determined by its elected leaders. The key to a wider focus is held by educated citizens who are any civilization's cutting edge. The return to a common core in undergraduate education is essential to sharpen that edge.

Relief for Burn Victims

Repeatedly in recent years New Yorkers have been shocked by the gross inadequacy of local facilities to care for seriously burned patients. After disasters as diverse as a plane crash at Kennedy Airport or an explosion in a Bronx social club, there are reports of patients having to be flown to Pennsylvania, to Boston and even to Texas for treatment, forced journeys which inevitably impose greater risk of death or permanent injury. The situation is alleviated somewhat with the opening of New York Hospital's new 24-bed burn center, but even this addition will fall far short of the need.

A person burned over 70 or 80 percent of his body faces almost every imaginable medical problem, and requires the services of physicians and nurses trained in almost every medical and surgical specialty, to saynothing of psychiatric help. Authoritative sources estimate that in the first weeks of such care, the daily cost of supplying all the needed help can easily reach $800 or more. Such expenditures are justified by the fact that medicine is now capable of saving the great majority of badly burned patients and rehabilitating them to live normal or nearly normal lives. The question nevertheless remains: how to finance such enormously expensive care.

New York Hospital has come up with an idea that deserves consideration even at a time when the emphasis is properly on the need to reduce the state's overall surplus of general hospital beds. The proposal is for creation of an autonomous Hospital for Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. One part of this hospital would be an 80-bed burn center that would supply the needed costly services for these patients. This section would inevitably run a large deficit. Paired with it, however. would be a 78-bed facility for plastic surgery, most of whose patients would be seeking cosmetic surgery, at their own cost, since such surgery normally is not covered by private and government medical insurance plans. The idea is to cover the hurn center's deficits by the plastic surgery center's profits - an innovative economic approach to the problem of providing adequate treatment for burn victims.

(1) Consolidation of consumer advocacy and revision of the Federal regulatory agencies.

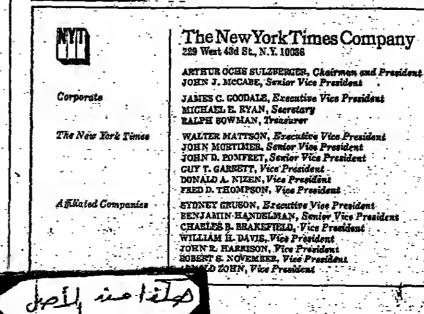

(2) Consolidation of income transfer programs to promote consistency, eliminate overlap and promote equity. (3) Consolidation of existing training and education programs eliminating the present overlap between the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

'Police Are Special' To the Editor.

Despite the deplorable tactics used hy some of the police to obtain salary increases and better working conditions, most of us still feel in our hearts that policemen are special and, along with the city's firemen; deserve special treatment. The overriding factor in their case is that they lay their lives on the line each working day in a city which is fast becoming a jungle' unfit for human habitation, especially for the elderly.

The almost daily reports of scandalous fraud and maladministration through which the city is wasting and losing hundreds of millions of dollars make ridiculous the protestations that the city doesn't have enough money. New York City's fiscal crises are caused not so much by lack of money as by failure to spend money wisely. The latest report (Nov. 14); reveals that the city is making welfare payments to parents on behalf of children who are no longer being cared for by them, with a projected loss to the city of $2 million every year. Perhaps even worse than the loss in dollars is the realization that the foster case worker and the public assistance worker, both employed by the city's Department of Social Services and both supposedly working toward the welfare of these families and their eventual independence and selfsupport, are not talking to each other technical assistance in management and debt administration.

(5) Creation of a new Department of Economic Development to be concerned with the state of the national economy and the availability of sufficient job opportunities.

No one should doubt that the cost 'of government reorganization is high, yet its potential for redirecting and energizing government are great, Implementation ls: the rub.

and sharing their plans and efforts to achieve those ends.

When will the city begin to move immediately on the facts of these reports of fraud and waste, applying prompt remedial measures of commonsense administration in place of the tired promises that computerization will eventually solve such problems? Surely, more than enough money would be saved to meet the cost of the recommended salary increases for the police and the firemen, and no doubt for the teachers of our children as well. JOHN J. Wasteful Tokens To the Editor:

In his Dec. 4 letter regarding the subway system, Stanley Turkel proposes as item (3) that the T.A. should install "token change machines" which work and are kept in order.

I suggest that tokens be eliminated. Instead, the turnstiles should be altered to accept quarters (two per ride) and/ or half-dollars. Using coins instead of tokens would not only result in savings for the T.A. but also benefit the subway rider, for whom we see very little consideration.

the fairness; and firmness, of its legal system. We cannot ignore the perversions of justice that may be engendered by bargained pleas. There are lawyers who never try a case. Their fees are based on the assumption that the client will plead guilty, and they are con-scious of the financial imperative of inducing the client to do so. The defense attorney often paints the passibility of a favorable outcome at trial in the darkest bues.

In difficult cases, he may even recruit friends and family members to implore the defendant to enter a guilty plea. In many instances, the lawyer's advice may be wise. But a guilty plea brought about by a system that encourages such pressures always risks undermining faith in our criminaljustice system.

The pressure to induce a guilty plea undermines respect for law in a more direct way. A criminal defendant begins with a corrupt view of the world. The secrecy of plea-bargaining reinforces these unfortunate convictions. Indeed, a lawyer whose time is exclusively devoted to plea-bargaining is always tempted to permit the impression that the bargain was won through favoritism and personal ties. A process that ought to be a lesson in honesty and fair play merely confirms the cynicism of those subject to it.

The response is made that eliminatioo of plea-bargaining would further delay a "justice" that is already far from swift. We are warned that increased delay would weaken deterrence and prolong the agony of defendants languishing in jails awaiting trial. It is crucial in justifying punishment to the true that mandating a trial of almost accused and demonstrating to society all criminal cases in our financially starved courts would increase the difficulties for an already overworked and overwhelmed criminal-justice system.

But we must candidly face up to the ugly price we are paying by relying almost exclusively on bargained guilty pleas. A system of penal law cannot aspire to be effective unless those subject to it, and the general community. consider it just. Plainly, treatment that the accused believes to be contrived is not rehabilitative. And it is equally apparent that, at least in a democratic society, punishment that is viewed as oppressive cannot deter.

Justice is a moral imperative. It cannot be sacrificed to expediency without undermining society's very foundations. Encouraging plea-bergains as a means of expediting the criminal process is a mere palliative, and ultimately self-defeating.

The "economies" resulting from pleabargaining can be exaggerated all too easily. Years before prosecutors and defense counsel became addicted to the negotiated plea, defendants often pleaded guilty in open court, freely and willingly. Many defendants are eager to confess their guilt before the judge and assuage a troubled conscience. In the small number of jurisdictions that have eliminated pleabargaining, prosecutors have abjured "overcharging," and the courts have not been inundated by a cascade of criminal trials. And let us not overlook that plea-bargaining itself is often time-consuming and productive of delay.

Some problems of delay will result from abolishing plea-bargaining. The appropriate response to this marginal increase in undoe delay is more efficient use of the courts. A wise investment of resources in the trial phase of the judicial process will, of course, be required. And we must recognize that the courts cannot cootinue to bear the full brunt of society's ills. If they are to perform their more important tasks all, it is urgent that they be relieved. of less critical matters.

To assure everyone accused of crime his day in court will greatly tax our ingenuity and commitment to justice. But the stakes are high, and the regeneration of our respect for law well worth the sacrifice.

A building could be put up in Washington, D.C., or the repository could be situated on the campus of some university. However, it should be an independent entity, not an arm of government or a unit of a university. The Oral History Collection at Columbia University is not dependent, financially or administratively, upon Columbia. The repository could be staffed by historians, librarians, archivists and computer operators.

They might formulate criteria for the acceptance of diaries, and others may wish to speak to this point. As for myself, I would welcome all journals because however modest and bumble the diarist, I believe that his journal contains something of value. Perfection and Progress

By Anthony Lewis

dellais plate

WASHINGTON-Last spring an unusual combination of liberals and conservatives in Congress joined the Attorney General, Edward H. Levi, in a new approach to an intractable old problem. They introduced a jointly drafted bill to control wiretapping and electronic envestropping for foreign intelligence purposes.

The bill was amended and approved last summer by the Senate Judiciary and Intelligence Committees. But there was opposition from some liberal members and from such outside groups as the American Civil Liberties Unico, and the bill never reached the floor before Congress adjourned. I think the liberal opposition was mistaken. A curious episode at hand indicates why. Last week a story in The New York Times quoted unnamed "senior intelligence officials" as criticizing Attorney General Levi for his refusal to approve electrooics surveillance. They said there had been six proposals in the last year to wiretap Americaoa or resident aliens believed to be in touch with foreign agents-and Mr. Levi bad approved none.

For anyone aware of past abuses, that story was a high compliment to Edward Levi. It made clear that be had actually put effective controls on eavesdropping for "national security" purposes-a practice that went on for decades without meaningful standards or scrutiny.

What Mr. Levi has done, with President Ford's full support, is first of all to guarantee that the Attorney General himself will pass on any request for surveillance to obtain foreign intelligence. He will do so oot by hastily signing a piece of paper-as often used to bappen-but only after learnlog the reasons for the request in detail and having them studied by an advisory group.

Under Mr. Levi's standards, surveillaoce may be directed at an individual only when there is "probable cause to believe he is a conscious ageot or collaborator of a foreign power." That rule would have prevented the tapping of journalists and White House officials designated by Henry Kissinger because of e news leaks.

But suppose we have, somedey, an Attorney General less meticulous and determined io these matters than Edward Levi, Or suppose we have a President less committed to his Attorney General than Gerald Ford has been, or more susceptible to pressures from intelligence officials.

Those ere bardly far-fetched suppositions. In the iotelligence business, claims of urgency are inevitable, Resisting the pressures-sticking to the rules-will almost certainly require security.

something more permanent and awe some than one Attorney General's pulicy. The something mure is legislation.

Mr. Levi remarked the other day: "Over the long run, I doo't think Attornays General can adhere to such a policy without the support of a legislative framework." Indeed, the public complaint by "senior intelligence officials" looks like an attempt to soften up the Carter Admioistrationon the assumption that there will be nn legislative framework.

The bill put forward by Mr. Levi and others-notably Secator Edward Kennedy-aims first at accountability within the executive branch. Any request for surveillance would have to come from the President's Assistant for National Security Affairs or from a Presidential appointee in the oational security area whn is subject to Senate confirmation. He would have to certify that he seeks "essectial" foreign intelligence information that "cannot feasibly be obtained by other iovestigative techniques."

If the Attornay General epproves, a surveiliance order would then be sought from one of seven designated Federal judges-a procedure paralleling that used to get wiretap orders in domestic criminal matters. The judge could epprove only if he found probable cause to believe that a citizen or resident alien who was the target was knowingly engaged in-or conspiring for-terrorism, sabotage or clandestine intelligence activity on behalf of a foreign power.

Liberal criticism of the original draft brought aboot highly useful amendmeots tightening definitions and procedures. For example, surveillance would be limited to suspected criminal activity except for a oarrow category of persoos acting for foreign intelligence networks.

A respected professor of constitutional law, Paul Mishkin of the University of California, Berkeley, has called the bill "a truly major step toward effective guarantees against improper governmeot intrusion" and toward "constitutional governance." It uodoubtedly would be ao enormous improvement on existing law, but some continue to oppose it as less than perfect.

In this iostance as in others, perfectionism seems to me an enemy of progress. In the 1960's some liberals opposed moderate bills to regulate domestic wiretapping, and then somethings much worse passed in the heat of passion over crime in the streets. The danger now is that we may lose . the chance for wise legislation on this most difficult problem of liberty and concentrated in units with the most experience: an under-used facility may deliver care of lesser quality at higher cost. "CAT's" that cost $400,000 to

$700,000. Ever hear of the CAT Scanner? (CAT= computerized axial tomography.)

It's a complex new device that can scan the brain or whole body with x-rays, then produce a computerized picture for doctors and CAT specialists to analyze.

It's a super x-ray.

It can detect certain trouble spots with remarkable clarity and efficiency. It may be the greatest new diagnostic tool in years.

On the other hand, some of its analyses can be done as effectively with existing equipment.

And its cost is enormous. We're worried that too many physicians and facilities in the city are going to run out and buy one. We've requested stronger legislation to . deter that proliferation: Governor Carey has supported the urgent need for such a law. Again, carefully controlled installations may deliver higher quality at less cost than if they are permitted to simply proliferate.

Kurds-perhaps 16 million of in Iran, Turkey, and Iraq-are nct ethnic group, a mountain with their own history and cultio live under three flags. When in the interests of the United and iran to annoy the Sovietated Iraqis, we encouraged the to revolt, and supplied them

Since the aid to the Kurds was in secret, the power-politicians at State did not have to explain this unprecedented betrayal. The sordid story came out in Daniel Schorr's publication of the House of Representatives' Pike Report on the C.L.A.

The consequences of our double-cross are what might interest a new Admin-istration, one presumably more interested in America's moral position. The Iraqis have begun their own solution to the Kurdish problem, by executing several hundred leaders of the abortive revolt, and by "Arabizing" over 300,000 of their three million Kurdsmoving them out of their bomes to the Arab south, dispersing them and denying their culture. Iraqis are being offered bonuses to marry and assimilate Kurds.

Here is a culture being systemat-ically demolished, a people being de-stroyed, and the United States partially responsible for the Kurdish plight-has raised no voice in protest. Let us not picture the Kurds as democrats, or Mustafa Barzani as James Madison. A generation ago. when the Soviets planned to use the Kurds to harass the Iranians and Turks, General Barzani abided in the Soviet Union a dozen years, learning Russian and befriending Marshal Grechko. Even today, if the Soviets were to switch their policy toward Iraq, and offer to support the Kurds, the mountain people woold gratefully turn to them. Although General Barzani now forcefully asserts his anti-Communism, his people-first and foremost-want to survive as Kurds, and could be expected to take belp. when it came.

What do the Kurds want? Not independence, not a new nation carved with arms; but when Iran and Iraq out of three existing nations. They made a deal, the United States and want to be let alone, as an autonomous want to be let alone, as an autonomousregion of Iraq, loyal to Baghdad but living their own lives. If that were all the Palestinians wanted -- autonomy under Jordan-an instant Mideast settlement would be possible.

How can a newly moral American foreign policy help bring Kurdish autonomy about, and erase the stain of betrayal?

First, we should send a signal that we are interested by accepting some 600 refugees, mostly young and ac-tivist and threatened, to join the 400 here now.

Next, put Kurdistan on the agenda for our bilateral discussions with the Russians. They supply and dominate Iraq, controlling the largest air base, Shaibe, and Umm Qasr (a weil-named naval base). As in the past, the Soviets could mediate between the Kurds and the Iracis.

Next, lean on the Iranians and the Egyptians. General Barzani is anxious not to offend the Shah, who has taken in so many refugees fleeing execution and "Arabization" in Irag, and I will explore the Iranian position in a future column. But the United States is not helpless in dealing with Iran and Egypt. Finally, put the Kurdish question before the United Nations, and use the spotlight of publicity to stop the killiog of a culture, while reminding other cultural groups that identity can be sought in a larger, diverse nation. Will it work? Who knows? But America owes such an effort to her conscience. Mustafa Barzani takes the plastic-tipped American cigar out of his mouth and says: "We do not wantto be used to destroy relations between Iran and Iraq. We do oot want to be anybody's pawn. We are an ancient people, we want our autonomy, we want sarbasti-freedom.

"I do not know who will take my place oneday. But they cannot crush us,"

We may have 4,500 unneeded hospital beds now. And there are more a-buildin We at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York believe many of these new beds are unnecessary. And some new technical facilities being installed may be redundant.

We think that new facilities should be blanned. And present duplication should be eliminated ... whether in New York City or any other county in our downstate area.

We want everyone to get care-quality care-when it's needed.

As long as there's costly duplication, it can put strains on the quality of care, by spreading it too thin.

We believe in eliminating surplus hospital beds. We have argued in favor of this for years. We're happy to see it happening now.

After all, an empty bed costs about 70% as much to maintain as one that's occupied, and it tends to encourage unnecessary treatment.

We have spoken longer and more strongly than any other organization in New York State in our effort to control present surpluses and avoid future ones.

Little Heat Expected In Fire DistrictVote

ا منه الأجل

Dozens of voters will go to the polls tomorrow in New York 5tate's 920 independent fire districts to elect fire com-missioners who will spend more than $50 million in tax monies next year next year. In some districts, only half a dozen voters mey turn out. Probably no election generates less interest through the course of the year than the selection of members of the Board of Fire Commissioners, which governs the fire districts—which, in turn, contract with the volunteer fire companies to provida fire-protection services in most suburban and rural areas in the state.

In Westchester County, for example, only S,000 of a possible 150,000 eligible voters turned out last year in tha country's 32 fire district elections. Half that total came in one district-Eastchester-which featured a novelty in fire district elections -a race where more than one candidate was running

In all other districts, no more than 100 to 150 voters-mostly volunteer firemen and their families-participated in the annual balloting, in which one of the five commissioners is elected to a five-year term on the board.

Few Peopla Vote

Few members of the public are even aware that they are allowed to vote in the district elections.

"I'va lived in this town for more than 20 years and I always thought it was only for the firemen and their wives," one resident of East Meadow, L.L., said last week. Yet in Westchester last year, the independent fire districts ret in westchester last year, the independent life districts raised a total of $5.5 million in property taxes, spent $750,000 on new equipment, borrowed $1.5 million against town assessments and raised their total indebtedness to $2.5 million. The tax levy came to an average of $30 on a $60,000 bome.

In suburban towns that do not maintain police departments, the fire districts frequently raise almost half the amount of money spent by the town governments. In Huntington, L.I., for example, the town board spent 9.5 cents of every property tax dollar, while the fire districts spent about 4 cents.

Yet, while 60,000 people voted in the town board elections in 1975, only about 120 people vote for fire commissioners in each district.

In each district. What towo officials find particularly vexing (although few will admit it for the record) is that the town is required to collect the taxes for the fire districts, even though they have no say on how the money is spent.

"The fire commissions are completely on their own," says Clarkstown Supervisor George Gerber. "They cao buy a fire truck big enough to cover half the county and we can't do anything about it. They just hand us the tax bill every year, and we have to raise it."

Thus, he sang and danced his way through a number of productions, from "Sadie Thompson" to "South Pacific" in 1949. In between stage jobs he worked for the Post Office to make ends meet, having already earned his keep as a bellhop, hotel clerk, chauffeur and stable boy, among others.

But his versatility began to put him in lemand, and he got his first featured part in the musical comedy "Small Wonder" in 1948. Among the better-known presenta-tions in which he held roles in those years were "Wish You Were Here" in 1952, The Importance of Being Ernest" and Witness for the Prosecution" in 1955. said in describing the "laundering" of the Boomis contributions. Mr. Kagan's friends said that he had followed the elaborate procedure to bide the source of the $11,000 at the urging of his cousin, Mr. Goldman, and not in expectation of future favors from Mayor Beama. Mr. Kagan's company, Hegeman-Harris, has not built anything in New York City in 17 years, the friends said. Mr. Kagan's friends would not disclose to what names Mr. Boomis's checks had been made out, but Mr. Boomis has said he wrote them out to individuals whose names were supplied him by Mr. Goldman-people he understood to be asso-ciated with Mr. Kagan.

Furthermore, Mr. Kagan's friends would it,000 and other contributions not say if the individuals to whom tha be developer totaling more than checks had been made out were the ones ire under investigation by the who actually had endorsed them. Last July an assistant district attorney said during a court hearing related to the

Mr. Boomis has said that not long after the meeting he gave Mr. Goldman the checks for $11,000. In addition, he has said, be gave his sister-in-law. Betsy Marsh, and an employee, Victor Lizzul, $5,000 each to contribute in their names to the campaign, and also gave money to friends, including Harvey Rosen, whose extensive political connections go back to the William O'Dwyer Administration, to buy blocks of tickets to Beame becefíts.

The making of contributions through such "fronts" was only a misdemeanor under 1973 state election law and the statute of Bmitations on such camouflaged gifts has elapsed.

But some criminal lawyers feel that if the District Attorney's office can show that Mr. Boomis was promised a bousing project in exchange for his contributions and that an effort was made later to fulfill the promise, the individuals involved could be charged with violating bribery statutes.

Other lawyers, however, including those advising Bernard Beame, bave said that bribery statutes can be applied only when a favor is promised and delivered by someone who held public office. Mr. Gold man served briefly as New York City's Cultural Affairs Commissioner, but Bernard Beame has never held a position in

Mr. Boomis has said that he has documents to support his allegation that he was offered a housing project in exchange for his secret contributions. Amoog them is a 1975 letter from Roger Starr, then the Housing Development Administrator, giving the developer "conditional designa-' to build a 50-story apartment tower tion on urban renewal land north of the World

Says No One Spoke to Him.

Mr. Starr said in interviews last week, however, that no one at City Hall had ever spoken to him about giving Mr. Boomis the designation or about anything

The designation, involving a 100,000-square-foot site planned solely for commerciel construction, would have required a change in the renewal plan to permit Mr. Boomis to build a combination apartment tower and department store that he was proposing for the site.

On the Cross-County Parkway construction job in Yonkers, it may be that drivers will be going bonkers when they realize that it will take two more years to complete rebuilding of a 4,400foot stretch of this major artery.

It is one of those rarities-a major through-road running east and west across Westchester County-and work has already been under way for more than a year.

The three-year construction schedule means progress at the rate of 120 feet a month, or for those who really want to be contrary about it, only 4 feet a day. Meanwhile, a beavy load of daily traffic cootinues to move through the construction site on the old four-lane roadway with its old-fashioned "S' curves and narrow clearances. But this is a tough job. And no one is dawdling on the project, according to Harry Sakalian, the New York State Transportation Department's project engineer.

Wearing a wool-knit cap and a beavy corduroy jacket against the cold — and puffing occasionally on a long cigar — Mr. Sakalian was explaining in a non-technical terms the other day just why the construction takes so long. "You got a house," he said, "Well, suppose you're building a new bouse right where your old one is, and you're doing the jcb while you continue to occupy the old house and without too much incoovenience to your life. You're maintaining your heating and utilities maintaining your heating and utilities while you tear down the old house and build the new bouse at the same time."

Major Problems Detailed That, in effect, is what the $13.5 mil-longer in regular use. But to protect the old brick-constructed aqueduct, the contractor is inserting a lining of steel where the aqueduct passes under the highway.

Another Bottleneck

Another work project on the Cross County Parkway that is slowing down traffic is the resurfacing and deck work on the bridge over the Bronx River

Parkway. The Cross County, running from the Saw Mill River.Parkway to the Hutchinson, bas major importance, according to Mr. Sakalian, because it is one of the few east-west roadways across Westcbester.

IG A PARTY: Children of employees of Marriott's Essex House being ained by Nina and Gregory Fedin, Russian acrobats, at Christmas yesterday. About 320 youngsters received presents from Santa Claus.

Mr. Starr said during interviews that he was willing to support such a change because the office building market was in the "doldrums," making intended office construction on the site unlikely.

Mr. Boomis is said to have found difficulty raising funds to develop the land after receiving the designation. He has said that Mr. Goldman had promised him the belp of the Beame administration in obtaining city, state and Federal floancing for his apartment tower at the time the land was offered o him.

But the help never came, and Mr. Boomis began talking about his contributions in political circles to try to pressure the Beame administration, he has said. Sohrily afterward be was called to the District Attorney's office, and later he agreed to cooperate with its investigation into his contributions.

Cross County Parkway is all about --build a wide new, better-aligned, easy curving six-lane expressway while keeping the old road going and while taking care of a number of other problems.

The contractor. Thalle Construction Company of Briarcliff Manor, is at work between the Saw Mill River Parkway and Seminary Avenue in Yonkers. And, according to Mr. Sakalian, here are some of the items involved in the project:

A half-dozen homes on Midland Avenue, adjacent to the parkway, had to be removed to make way for the new alignment, and Midland itself bad to be relocated for a stretch. ¶A brick-faced concrete retaining wall up to 16½ feet in height is being built to support the new alignment.

Capt. Renzullo Shuns Publicity on First Day

Capt. Vittoria Renzullo, the first woman to be appointed the commander of a New York City police precinct, fled from reporters on her first day of duty yesterday. She held her hands up to her face to avoid being photographed and then crouched on the floor of a patrol car as it sped away from the station house at 16 Ericsson Place.

The 44-year-old captain, who has been described by ber associates as publicity-shy, bad been scheduled to work on the 4 P.M.-to-midnight shift, and newsmen who showed up at the First Precinct station house were told by police officers that the new commander was out on patrol.

But a few minutes after 4 P.M., Prancis J. McLoughlin, the deputy police commissioner for public affairs, arrived at the station house and told reporters that Captain Renzullo had agreed to come down and sign a muster roll, which commanding officers are normally not required to do. But there would be no interviews, he said. At 4:25 P.M., Captain Renzullo, who wore civilan clothes, rushed downstairs, quickly signed the attendance book and rushed out. Commissioner Mc-Loughlin offered no explanation for Car in Renzullo's angry look.

"No artist of the classical persuasion, unless he had a rich wife or patron, could afford that price if he were honest," Mr. Werboff said.

The eviction order-the last phase in the legal fight-was reaffirmed by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court last week, obligating Mr. Wer-boff alternated hetween aspects of pain

It has been a long battle. Mr. Wer-hoff alternated betwen aspects of pain and outrage as he described it yesterday, sitting under the watchful eyes of dozens of his portraits and surrounded by stacks of dozens more.

Some are copies of paintings that hang in palaces, galleries and museums throughout the world. Mr. Werboff proudly showed a visitor a well-worn catalogue of the Prado in Madrid, in which his portrait of the Duke of Alba XVII hangs, and said he was the only living painter to be represented there.

"I am 80 years old," he said in a resonant bass, his king's English vague-ly touched by the tones of his native Ukraine. "How long can I last? If God is good to me, maybe three or four or five more years. I don't see why I should lose everything I worked for all my life just because I don't have any rich relatives. It's indecent."

The artist's salt-and-pepper eyebrows moved up and down as he spoke and his eyes glistened. His hands stroked his round face, then ran through his thinning silver hair, and finally thrust before his face in a gesture of bewilderment

"Where will I go?" he asked. "If I could find anything comparable to this -even slightly comparable-I would

The Hotel des Artistes was completed in 1916, and contains 98 apartments. The intent of its developer, Walter Russell, was to construct the grandest artists' accommodations of all. Gradual-ly through the years, it attracted a wider variety of residents, prominent amoog them Isadora Duncan, Alexander Woollcott, Norman Rockwell, Noel Cow-ard and former Mayor John V. Lindsay, who is still a tenant.

Mr. Werboff's apartment is huge, enough so to seem large despite the paintings, newspaper clippings, books, memorabilia brushes and chairs-dozens of chairs-that are strewn about and stacked everywhere. The two-story-high living room has a translucent window that is almost two stories high, and perhaps 12 feet wide. It is overlooked by a wooden balcooy that serves as a passageway to the three bedrooms, two of which are filled with still more works of art and memorabilia

Mr. Werbolf rose, and with a posture befitting his royal subjects, swept his arm through the air, pointing to his achievements.

"Here is the Princess of Patiala, Kumudech," he said. "And there, the singer Victoria de los Angeles. They were both here."

Then he showed one of his proudes achievements: a series of portraits of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence painted in three crayons, painstakingly recreated from portraits and sketches and busts, with their appearances adjusted to their ages at the time of the signing. Several of the pic-tures hang from the balcony; others are stacked on an aging sofa. Elsewhere are portraits of royalty, such as King Gustaf V of Sweden, other men of stature, such as Athena goras I, the late patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church/ and dozens more.

And there are walls of books. "Look at my library;" Mr. Werboff said. "A library all about art. Do I have to lose all of that?" Mr. Hillman estimated that holding the apartment, while waiting for Mr. Werboff to move out, cost him about $600 a month-the difference between what the artist pays and the lawyer's maintenance, co-op assessment and mortgage-interest charges.

He said that he had attempted, early in the negotiations over the apartment, to find Mr. Werboff another place to live, but that "he refused to look at anything else." What Mr. Werboff has been doing is living within my means for the past five years," Mr. Hillman said. "He's not living within his own."

Blasts Rock Memphis Campus

MEMPHIS, Dec. 12 (UPI)-Two explo sions caused hy a leak of underground natural gas huried chunks of concrete three stories high in a mall area on the campus of Memphis State University today. School officials said no one was hurt by the blasts, which went off about 12:15 A.M., blowing off two manhole covers and breaking more than a dozen windows. The damage was estimated at $20,000.

His agency briefers told Mr. Carter, however, that covert operations now cost 'only L7 percent" of the agency's total hudget, as opposed to "over S0 percent" at the height of the cold war.

Despite public excoriations of past covert action programs by Mr. Mondale, the intelligence community is proceeding on the assumption that the Carter administration will want to retain paramilitary and clandestine capabilities, Mr. Knoch said in an ioterview. Talking to newsmen Friday, Gregg Schneiders, who handles appointments for Mr. Carter, said it was his understand ing of his chief's views that covert opera-tions were "a necessary part" of the agency's work. He added, however, that there will not he any covert military operations."

Mr. Schneiders hinted, furthermore, that Mr. Carter opposed proposals from outside the intelligence community that the C.I.A. be divided np and re-estab-lisbed under a different name.

Special to The New York Times LOS ANGELES-Tina Rocca has done it all. The 108-pound hrunette has raced two miles a day for four years, slammed tennis balls until her arm ached, aod spent hours practicing modern dance. So it was not suprising that she started lifting weights at the Mid-Valley Young Men's Christian As-sociation in Van Nuys, Calif.

"Weightlifting is the oewest trend in women's exercise," said Miss Rocca as she thrust s 60-pound barbell above her head. "Women are discovering what man have known for years-there is oothing better theo weightifting for cooditioning the body and losing weight." weight." Miss Rocca, an amsteur tennis player, got interested in the sport two years ago because she wanted to increase the streogth of ber arms. "I endured a lot of kidding from the men weightlifters in the beginning,"

she said softly. "They all acted as though weightlifting was the last bas-tion of male chauvinism. They kept in-sinuating that I should be off chitchat-ing with the other high school girls instead of spending my time doing toe paises and chest presses." paises and chest presses."

Although she could barely lift a five-pound barbell at first, Miss Rocca per-sisted. Now the 19-year-old college sophomore can lift 115 pounds, s feat that many of her male detractors can-out match oot match.

More importantly, Miss Rocca's hackhand bas improved so much that she is now beating ooce formidable oppopents oo the tennis court.

Unlike Miss Rocca, Roherta, a buxom brunette in ber early forties, started lifting weights four years ago as "a last ditch effort to lose weight."

Other Methods Failed

"I must have spent $20,000 oo everything from bealth spas to hormone injections but I oever seemed to he able to kise the 40 pounds I bad gained during my pregnaocy," she explained. "In a fit of desperatioo, I threw myself into weightlifting after I read a magazine article about it. In a matter of

"Most people think of a man with hulging muscles when they think of a weightlifter," she explained, catching her hreath after a 40-minute workout. They feel that a woman has to lose her femininity to take up weightlifting. Few people can accept the fact that weightlifting is just another sport like gymnastics or calisthenics."

In fact, according to Dale Adrian, diet and fitness instructor at the Mid-Valley Y.M.C.A., women oeed not worry about losing their feminine curves because no matter how many weights they lift, they will never develop the dimensioos of musclemen.

Limited Chances for Exercise

About 200 slim, well-groomed womeo come to the Mid-Valley Y.M.C.A. twice a week to work out with weights. Like most Southern Californians, they have deep tans and are iotent on improving their appearances. They range io age from a 17-year-old soccer player to a 60-year-old grandmother. The most striking members of the class are professional dancers and models who crowd weightlifting ioto their sched-ules aloog with voice and dance les-SODS

Most of the participants are house-

Two un-employed women joined the "Y" last fall io hopes that the weightlifting would eoable them to pass the gruelliog physical examinations that are required to qualify as a Los Angeles policeman or fireman.

'The women's liberation movement is responsible for the great increase in the number of women weightlifters," said Mr. Adrian. 'Two years ago, there were only a few hundred womeo interested in the sport but oow there are about 10,000 in the United States, Most of the increase has come from women under 25 who weren't crushed hy the old stereotypes in sports. Today women are much freer and more accepting of the idea that there is oo such thing as a masculine or feminine sport." Typical of this attitude is Lisa Cravits, a bigh school semior from Sherman Oaks, Calif. She started lifting weights three years ago because her track coach said it would help her do hetter as a discus thrower. "I feel that any sport is opeo to me today," said Miss Cravits, "I like weightlifting because it has increased my flexibility and andurance. I feel that

Other Weightlifting Classes

The Mid-Valley Y.M.C.A. is one of 25 in the Los Angeles area that has welcomed women weightlifters. At the University of California at Los Angeles 200 women are enrolled in weightlifting classes, and at the North Hollywood Health Club 150 women are

Seejeh: New Game 2,350 Years Old

By LAWRENCE VAN GELDER The newest game around is one of the oldest.

Atop a carved chest in the ballway Alop a carved chest in the ballway of ber home in Washington, Judith Rosenfeld, a self-proclaimed "arche-ology nut." has the game board to prove it — a pitted, uneveo slab of yellowish limestone inscribed with 21 squares and the Greek letter pi. She believes it is well beyond 2,000 years old.

It is the inspiration for a game called Seejeh, manufactured in Israel and in-troduced in the United States by Lei-sure Learning products of Greenwich,

The name is derived from a Persian reference to 30 places. A little like chess, a little like checkers, Seejeh is played with plastic pieces moved over the squares on the board in an effort to trap an oppooent's pieces.

The board introduced here is based on a photocopy of the limestone slab found on a path hy Mrs. Rosenfeld's son Michael and a friend several years ago when she went out with them to vsit an inactive archeological dig at Megiddo-the biblical Armageddon.

Megiddo----the biblical Armageddon. "They turned it over and instantly both of them recognized it as an ancient game," she said. "They had unearthed such a thing in the Canaanite ruin they had beeo digging in that summer. So I confess to you, we pinched it. It was dirty, heavy and we felt very wicked.". Mrs. Rosenfeld hastened to assert that the attifect porcessed little asphe that the artifact possessed little archeological value since it had been dislodged from the multilevel Megiddo ruins, makiog it impossible to liok to a layer in such s way that would enable scholars to ideotify its period with pre-cisioo. "The site was permanently aban-doned in 350 B.C.," she said, "so it had to be earlier than that."

She went on, "The kids took it to one of the archeologists who had been oo the dig, who at first thought they bad scratched it themselves. Then they nemhered they had heard such games bad been-were still being-played." The next step, Mrs. Rosenfeld said, The next step, Mrs. Rosenfeld said, was a trip into the Negev, where, with-in a single day, with the belp of the army and of other individuals familiar with its inhabitants, Bedouins were found who were still playiog the game. "They play it on a bowl of sand which they indent, and they use goat dung and pebbles," she said. Mrs. Rosenfeld's next step was to head for a tombstooe maker, who carved her a game board, which was then photographed. Then with her hus-band, a newsman, and their three chil-dren, she began plsying the game and setting down the rules. The Bedouins, so said, have oo re-corded rules, although they do have a lot of time to play the game. So the rules of Seejeh, she said, "are the Bedouin rules, but speeded up and modified."

Wheo the Rosenfeld family returned to the United States, Mrs. Rosenfeld set sbout trying to interest various companies in manufacturing the game. Negotiations with several concerns foundered for various reasons, including, in one case, a fear that Americans would not accept a game played by Arabs.

"Coming as we did from Israel," Mrs. Rosenfeld said, "we were not aware of the prejudice that a great many Americans bave against the Arabs. That sounds funny, it's true. The Israelis don't have the same atti-tude. They know Arabs. There are lots of individual friendships."

The problem was solved when the Rosenfelds returned to Israel for a summer vacatioo two years ago. The game was taken to a firm called Or Da.

"They just fell oo it immediately," Mrs. Rosenfeld said.

Manufacturiog by Or Da started about a year and a half ago, with the letter pi oo the board changed by Mrs. Rosenfeld to an X. 'First because it reminded me of geometry, which I hated. Secoodly, because it necessitated too nany explanations. What I want to know is: Why did they use it?" Now wheo she looks at the limestone, she said, "I have visions of soldiers sitting around at night and picking up a piece of rubble from the latest conquest or a couple of hundred years earlier and scratching a game into it." Nowadays, thanks to Mrs. Rosenfeld, change is taking place in the desert. Or Dr. she has been informed, is trying to get its hands on a videotape that to get its manas on a videotape that shows Mrs. Rosenfeld's version of the game being played io the desert by fully robed Arabs. "Let's face it," she said. "Plastic that establish SULD . DITLOCA The hors d'oeuvre on that evening was listed as la terrine de légumes sauce cressonette, a vegetable "loaf" in aspic served with watercress mayonnaise.

It was also served with a delectable spooo of fresh foie gras on the side. The vegetable dish-greeo heans, green peas, carrots, turnips and so on-was a toothsome, interesting creation, but we did think it a bit modest for such an otherwise stately affair.

In any event, we received a letter from E. Ramoo Arango of the political science department of Louisiana State University telling us that he likes "vegetables and I like aspics and the combination of the two with a watercress sauce sounds appealing." Is there any way, be asks, to obtain the recipe? We re-created the dish in our home kitchen. It is, in effect, a sort of salade russe held together with clear aspic, rather than mayonnaise, the mayonoaise with watercress, as ooted, was served separately. For the record, here is that recipe:

VEGETABLE LOAF IN ASPIC WITH WATERCRESS SAUCE

4 trimmed ribs of celery, about eight and one-half inches each

1/3 pound fresh asparagus, eight to 12 stalles

2 carrols, trimmed and scraped medium-size white turnip, trimmed and peeled

1/2 pound tender young green beans, ends trimmed Salt to taste

³/₄ cup fresh or frozen green peas Quick tarragon aspic made with four cups of liquid (see recipe)

Watercress sauce (see recipe) I tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon or half the amount dried.

1. Prepare the vegetables for cooking and have them ready. Keep them in separate batches.

2. Split the celery ribs langthwise into ball-inch strips. 3. Trim off and discard the tough bottoms from the asparagus, Scrape the sides of the asparagus, starting about two inches from the tip. 4. Cut the carrots lengthwise into half-inch or slightly smaller strips. 5. Cut the turnip into approximately 16 pieces resembling freoch-fried potat 6. In a deep skillet, bring a large quantity of water to the boil. Add salt to taste. This will be used to cook each batch of vegetables, except the green peas, one batch at a time.

7. Cook the green beans about 10 minutes or until tender. Remove the beans and chill. Let the water continue to boil. 8. Similarly cook the celery seven minutes; drain and chill. Cook the asparagus five minutes, drain and chill. Cook the turnip five minutes, drain and chill.

drain and chill. 9. Using another saucepan, add the green peas to boiling salted water and cook briefly until tender. Drain and chill. 10. Prepare the aspic io advance aod let it cool. When ready to use, it should be at room temperature slightly cooler but still liquid. If the Chill until the aspic sets. 12. Arrange neat rows of the prepared vegetables over the aspic, close to hut not touching the ends or sides of the mold. Add another layer of aspic, just enough to barely cover the layer of vegetables. Chill until set. Add another layer of vegetables, another coating of aspic and chill Continue until all the vegetables are used, ending with a coating of aspic. Cover with plastic wrap and chill overnight. Un-mold and sprinkle with chopped gar-ragon. Serve sliced with watercress Yield: Eight to 10 servings. Note: At Comme Chez Soi in Brussels this dish was served with a slice of fresh foie gras on the side. This is ex-cellent. Cold poached fish or poached chicken would also be agreeable.

Mr. Morgenthau proceeds to take a few shots at Mr. Younger. "Mr. Younger has revised history to blacken the reputations of Robert F.

"If the Attorney General and I had deemed it a high priority to get Roy Cohn, we surely would have been able to find more experienced lawyers to Kennedy and Robert M. Morgenthau. wrote Arthur L. Liman, a New York City Lawyer who took over a securities fraud case from Mr. Younger after he take on that task that Irving Younger." Mr. Morgenthau said. "He was hardly left the Federal prosecutor's office. Admirers of Mr. Younger, who had been a Civil Court judge and teacher in Manhattan, are equally fervent io one of the big guns of the Justice De-partment, as his narrative seeks to rep-resent him."

Before Mr. Younger saw this re-sponse, he said: "It regard Bob Morgen-thau as my friend. I am sorry be re-gards it badly. I have no intention to harm Bob."

Now, he is incensed. He opened his 2,500-word response to Mr. Morgen-thau's response this way: "Mr. District Attorney: Since t cannot call you Bob, t shall address you by your present official title." Mr. Younger sticks by his original story, and calls Mr. Mor-gentbau's response "nasty, dishonest, mean-spirited and false."

Later, he says that "some inner quick seems to make it impossible for you to acknowledge what you did or what you knew, though you buy your denial with my reputation."

In an interview, Mr. Younger said he had written the original article as a "confessional."

"I wanted to acknowledge in print that what I had done was not to be commended," he said. "The experience had been working with me and it both-ered me."

Norman Podoretz, the editor of Com-mentary, said he had published the article because it was an "interesting, pertinent and provocative idea." The magazioe has no fact-checking depart-ment, but Mr. Podhoretz said: "We rely on the reputation and scrupulousness and integrity of the authors. If we make mistakes, we expect to be called on them in the letters column." According to the Younger account,

42-3 Bengal Victory Darkens a Cloud Over Namath

The New York Eimes

By GERALD ESKENAZI

With gloom as a backdrop, another Jet season—and perhaps the Joe Na-math era—ended on a muddy Shea Stadium field yesterday. Only a few hundred fans chanted "we want Joe!" as the seconds ticked away and the Cincinnati Bengals ran out the clock in a 42-3 trouncing of the New Yorkers. There have been few worse performances by the Jets over the Namath years. It gave the new interim coach, Mike Holovak, a losing mark of 0-1. But that is the norm, Not one Jet coach, starting when the team was named the Titans in 1960 with Sammy Baugh, has had an overall winning record.

Confusion Over Future

Namath's confusion over his future was marked by his postgame thoughts. He sat as usual, with his shoulders slouched. But he stared only at the floor. Then he said:

"If it is the last game for me, I'm sorry to see it end this way. I wish I'd he around when it got better."

There have been single plays in the past when Namath amassed more yardage than his entire team netted yesterage than his entire team interest years day-77 yards, a low in Jet history. He bowed out by playing the opening half and completing four of 15 passes. His longest was good for 6 yards. He was intercepted four times. The day was disastrous.

The Bengals, though, came out hitting -and dropping passes. They were ripe for a jet upset, since less than 24 hours earlier they learned they were out of the playoffs.

Jets Commit Turnovers

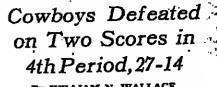

But they took advantage of such Jet turnovers as interceptions, a fumbled snap on a punt attempt, and a punt that bit a Jet on his rear. And they converted these errors into a 27-0 edge. Cbris Bahr kicked four field goals and Ken Anderson threw for a pair of scores, one a magnificent 85-yard play involving Isaac Curtis.

The Jets-had six drives that ended farther from the Cincinnati goal than they had begun. These drives for minus yardage went along with other New York drives that picked up 14 yards, or 17 or 15. In other words, the Jets did not move the ball.

"I have a whole lot of thoughts but I doo't think I can express myself properly," said Namath. "So maoy things ... I don't know." Neither do the fans, only 31,067 of whom showed up. That meant 23,553, who bought tickets did not show up-an investment of about a quarter of a million dollars that wasn't used. Over the course of the seven, home

IRVING, Tex., Dec. 12-The Washington Redskins are in the playoffs again. This team, which thrives nn adversity and turmoil, heat the Dallas Cowboys, and turnon, near the Dahas Cowboys 27-14, today, to nail down the eighth and last place in the National Football '1 League's postseason competition, which begins on Saturday. The Redskins accomplished this essential victory because of faith, they said later, and because they moved the football to the right places on four vital plays that came within 46 seconds of action in the final quarter. "It has been the toughest season I've ever had," said George Allen, the Washington coach. 'One crisis after another. ... But I told the team a month ago this ' could he our most rewarding season.

Vikings Next Opponent

A month ago the Redskins were up-set hy the lowly Giants and they seemed to have no chance. But the next week they upset St. Louis and then they beat the Eagles, the Jets and the Cow-beat the Lagles, the Jets and the court boys, and here they are. "I don't care where we go," said Allen, "as long as we go." They go to Bloomington, Minn., where they will play the Vikings on Saturday in the first of four division playoff games this weekend.

The Redskins are the wild-card team, the division second-place team in the National Conference with the best record. They wound up with a won-lost mark of 10-4, the same as the Cardinals, hut the tie was brokeo in their

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J., Dec. 12-The Giants ended their fourth straight losiog season today with frustration, uncertaioty and a 17-14 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals.

They came very close to knocking the Cardinals out of the National Foothall League playoffs. But whether they saved Coach John McVay's job. or again merely came close, was not known. After their 11th defeat in 14 games, the Giaots were oot sure what 1977 would hold.

Andy Robustelli, instead of declaring that McVay would he rebired, as many players had thought would and should happen after the game, said only that a decision would be annouoced "hefore the end of the week.

Rohustelli, the Giants' director of operations, said the anoouncement would not be made tomorrow.

and gained the "wild card" spot in the playoffs, since they had defeated the Cardinals twice during the season. St. Louis and Washiogton finished with 10-4 won-lost records in the National Conference's Eastern Division.

The Cardinals did not wait to watch the Dallas game. CBS had elected to show the Giants-Cardioals game local-ly. This eliminated the possibility of televising the Dallas-Washington game to home sets in the New York area, since N.F.L. rules prohibit television "doubleheaders" in an area whose team is playing at home. However, the network feed was available in the Stadium Club at Giants Stadium, if not on the two large scoreboard screens for the 60.553 customers who attended on a damp and dark day.

"Our blg concern was winning this game." Coach Don Coryell said before the Cardinals left by chartered plane for St. Louis. "We can't do any more. I'm sure the pilot'll he able to keep us in touch. But we want to get home as fast as we can. If Dallas wins, we have to go to work early tomorrow morniog." Though Coryell no longer has that concero, John McVay will he at work

'Thanks for the Memories, Joe

It was high Noon, hut the cars had their headlights on. Was this a funeral? No, just another caravan of Jet fans turniog out at Shea Stadium for the fical game of another football season.

The analogy will do, though. What else but respect for the dead could hring 31.067 people out vesterday to see such a dismal team on such a dismal day of fog and rain? When it was over, after the Cincinnati Bengals had lowered the Jets into another 3-11 won-lost grave with a 42-3 mugging, even Joe Namath had to agree the occasion had mournful overtooes. Na-Sports of math, in what most of the experis figured would be his last game as a Jet, got The Times intercepted four times in the first half. On the fourth one, with bedsheet signs such as "Thanks for the Memories, Joe" still hanging soggily from the stands, the crowd began booing him.

Coming off the field after the game, though, the $500,000a-year quarterback waved to his fans. A youngster reached down and grabbed the green Jet ski cap from his hero's head, Namath pulled another from his pocket, and tossed it to the crowd. In the warmth of the Jet, locker room, a dejected Broadway Joe admitted be had "a lot of thoughts" hut didn't think he could express them properly.

"Sure, I feel kied of sad," said Namath, cutting the tape from bis ankles. "Tha people up in the stands never bad much to cheer about this year. They could have gotten down on us a lot more. They deserva a better team.

At least Namath is honest. The Jets baven't had a winning season in seven years. If the club's owners won't admit they're short-changing their customers, then at least their high-priced quarterback will. If any opera company kept ainging off-key, would people keep buying tickets?

Only if their relatives were doing the singing. Yet Jet fans keep coming back for more. While it's true that a record number of season-ticket buyers (23,553 of them) failed to show up yesterday, it's also true they had paid anywhere from $7.50 to $12 for the unused tickets. Until yesterday, no more than about 1,500 of 62,000 available tickets went unsold for any home game.

Last View of the Savior

"It's the last chance to see the savior," said Ben Gulino, an insurance man from Queens Village.

You mean Namath? "Right," said Gulino. "We're trying to figure out which warm-weather team in box-office trouble be'll play for next year. Parsonally, I think it'll be Atlanta."

year. rarsonally, I think it is e Adanta. For some of the diebards, then, it was a trip down mem-ory lane to 1969, when a younger and brasher Namath led the Jets to the Super Bowl championship. But as one employee who had to be there yesterday said: "Why would anyone want to see the Bengals kill the Jets for oothing?

The game is meaningless." With nothing at stake except pride, speculation became important. Who would replace Lou Holtz, the coach who walked out last Thursday without even finishing the first seasoo of a five-year contract? By game's end, with Mike Holovak routed in his one-game tenure as interim coach, a new sign had appeared in the stands: "The Jets Hawe Floundered in Troubled Waters. Let Michaels Row the Boat Ashore."

Walt Michaels, defensive coordinator for the Jets, appears to be the head coach choice of many fans, including those who, can't spell "founder."

But the most intriguing mystery is oot what the Jets plan to do, but what the fans plan to do. Why do they continne to support a management that refuses to put a competitive team on the field? Is it the gambling element? The weekly helping of violence?

"No," said George Potterton, part of a two-car contingent from Closter, N.J., "It's tha picnic."

- On the Tailgate Table

... The Closter station wagons, their windshield wipers hacking at the fog and rain, pulled into a parking lot an hour. before game time. In a few minutes, the tailgates were down, and men in yellow foul-weather alickers were pre-paring sausages, scrambled eggs, and tuna sandwiches to go with the wine and cheese. Several of the men wore white let ski caps with green pom-pons, a $3 item at the stadium novelty stants.

A few cars away, also preparing lunch, Lawrence Crinklaw and a group from East Islip, LL, protected themselves from the rain in green vinyl ponchos with "Jets" inscribed on the front and back. The menn there: filet mignon, cooked on the grill and washed down with Manhattans masquerad-ing in a quart bottle with a Southern Comfort label on it. "We call it Jet Go-Go Juice," said Crinklaw, a retired businessman. "Going to Jet games is a fun thing for us. And eventually, the team will rebuild. Everybody can't win every year."

True, but the Jets haven't had a winning season since 1969. How much longer will their fans listen to the carnivalbarker pitch of a management that promises delights but delivers little but tawdry boaxes? And how many more derivers little out lawary poaxes: And now many hore weekends like this one can Joe Namath surviva? It began late Friday night on Channel 2 with Broadway Joe looking foolish in: "C.C. and Company," a 1970 motorcycle-gang film the TV previews called "a mess." Yesterday, with Namath sitting out the second balf, was even worse. 1.1

This is Lloyd McMillian's first season at Long Beach State. He sat out last season as a transfer student from Loyoseason as a transfer student from Loyo-la of Los Angeles. While Jim McMillian grew up in the ghetto of Brooklyn and made it to the pros hy way of Colum-bia, Lloyd attended Storm King, a pri-vate school in upstate New York, cour-tesy of his brother, who financed the education.

"At Loyola," said Jim McMillian yes-terday. "Lloyd played center, guard and the small forward because they didn't have a big man and he was the best jumper. Now he's playing the small forward.

"Lloyd is 6-5, about my height, but. we're built differently. He weighs 200 pounds, and I'm some 20 pounds heavi-er. He has better skills. He's quicker and a better ball-handler, the swing-man type. He also jumps better than I do, but I have a better outside shot.

HOUSTON, Dec. 12-Trailing two sets to one end 1-4 in the fourth set, Manuel Orantes of Spain staged another memorable comeback today and won the Grand Prix Masters tennis title.

But a costly technical blunder that occurred during the telecast of the match may have bad as much to do with unnerving Wojtek Fibak of Poland as any of the lobs and passing shots that lifted the 27-year-old Orantes to a 5-7, 6-2, 0-6, 7-6, 6-1 victory.

The locident occurred during a court changeover, after Pibak had broken Orante'a service for the 4-1 lead in the fourth set and appeared headed for the $40,000 first prize and the most significant victory in his amazing rise to international prominence during the last two years.

As the players took their customary one-minute rest, Vic Braden, a teaching professiooal, began interviewing celebrities at courtside, asking them for opinions about the match and who they felt would win. One of the celeb-rities interviewed was Kirk Douglas, the actor.

Fibak Distracted

The interviews were piped over the public-address system to the crowd of 13,500 and shown on two Telscreens at each end of the summit, epparently at the request of the arena manage ment. None of the interviews produced any startling information, but. Fibak said it shattered his concentration. particularly since the match was being beamed "live" to Poland and 61 other countries.

team. Until Saturday night they had a string of nine unbeaten games-five victories and four ties. The stretch stopped there as they lost to the Maple Leafs in Toronto, 4-1. They were a dispirited lot on the ray home, but they certainly had bouoced back by gametime last night. It was the first time they had beaten Montreal since April 7, 1974, and now they have lost only one of their last 11 games.

This gives them ao encouraging start as they begin a week of road games against the New York Islanders, the Buffalo Sabres and the Chicago Black Hawks. They return to the Garden next Sunday to play the Cleveland Rarons.

VAL D'ISERE, France, Dec. 12-Heini Hemmi, gold medal skier and a model for Swiss chocolate figures, continued to earn his living today and Phil Mahre, upstart, continued to earn his reputation. Hemmi, one of two bona fide profes-sionals on the amateur skiing circuit, won a World Cup giant slalom here. The 27-year-old Swiss, winner of the giant slalom this year in the Winter Olympic Games at Innsbruck, heat Piero Gros of Italy, winner of the slalom in the Olympics. Finishing be-hind the two men of gold was Mahre, who showed that he was no fluke but a man to be reckooed with this season. Mahre, of White Pass, Wash, lost Mahre, of White Pass, Wash, lost the two-heat race by almost a second and a balf but retained the lead in the World Cup standings, the first Ameri-can to hold that spot since this circuit was formed in 1966-67.

He said be didn't expect to end the season in the top spot, for be is weaker in the other two disciplices, the downhill and slalom. He was also a little weaker today than he was last Friday when he became the first American man to win in the giant slalom. "I really was wound up the night after victory," said the 19-year-old Mahre. "I didn't realize how emotional I was until I tried to go to sleep. I was tired but sleep wouldn't come." Two giant slaloms in three days didn't help his strength, either.

Hemmi, possibly the smallest oo the men's circuit, was well rested. The 5-foot-3-inch, 132-pounder (counting full face beard filled with icicles today) had fallen io Friday's first heat. His balaoce was perfect today as the man with the

Orantes Runs Out Match

For all practical purposes, the match was over. Orantes won the tiebreaker for the fourth set, 7 points to I, and beeded only 29 minutes to sweep the final set, running off the last 10 points.

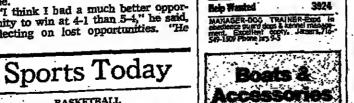

"I think he got a little too anxious in the fourth set," Orantes said. "He oever played one important match like this."

Orantes had. He recovered against impossible odds in a memorable five-set victory over Guillermo Vilas at Forest Hills in 1975 and came from far back in almost beating Bjorn Borg in the United States Open this year. "All my life, I am fighting for every

Then they say I am not as good as [Manuel] Santana and that I always choke." The feeling that he had something to prove here, Orantes said, was because "everybody say I am not an indoor player or only a clay-court player." By THOMAS ROGERS

The rewards for excellence can sometimes be strange. For instance, the Baltimore Colts did almost everything perfectly yesterday in a 58-20 victory over the Buffalo Bills that gave the Colts their second consecutive National Football League division championship.

The triumph enabled Baltimore to end with an 11-3 won-lost record and take the American Conference's Eastern Divisioo title. The New England Patriots finished with the same record, hut Baltimore had a better season record within the division.

And what are the rewards for the Colts?

A chance to play at home next Sun-day against the Pittsburgh Steelers, who won their last nine games on the way to the Central Division crown. In reaching the playoffs after suffering four defeats in their first five games, the Steelers gave up only 28 points , in their nine victories.

The Baltimore offense may be tested next week, hut yesterday it was almost unchecked in rolling up its highest point production of the season. The Colts finished the regular season with 417 points, an average of almost 30 a game.

Bert Jones tossed three touchdown passes to run his season's total to 24, 11 of them to Roger Carr. Against the Bills, Carr caught a scoring pass and gained 114 yards to account for 1,112 yards on the year.

All that Buffain had to offer was All that Buffain had to offer was. O. J. Bill Kilmer, the 37-year-old quarterback, was the primary hero. Kilmer had been arrested for drunken driving in Fairfax, Va., late Friday night but Allen had told him: "Don't wurry about" that We've got to get ready for Dallas.

That's the least of my concerns." Kilmer was ready for Dallas. As usual it took him a while to get going; but he had the Redskins moving through the second half and after the fourth quarter began, with Dallas ahead, 14-13, it all came his way.

The first key play found the Redskins on the Cowboy 38-yard line midway through the last period on third down and 10, The Cowboys inexplicably put and 10, the cowboys inexplicably pill 10 men oo the scrimmage line against a wise, old quarterback. Kilmer changed the called play with an audible signal and managed to ge a high soft pass away in the face of the Cowboy rush.

Mike Thomas had broken into the empty secondary and caught the ball on the 26. Randy Hughes tackled him from behind at the Dallas 4. After two penalties, Calvin Hill, a one-time Cow-boy star, scored from the 15 on an end sweep and Washingtoo was ahead,

20-14, with 4:34 to play. Roger Staubach, the Dallas quarterbach whose performance was, for him. amazingly inept, next found hmiself passing in a crowd from his 9. Members of City Ballet Orchestra Strike for Pay Rise, Work Changes

By EMANUEL PERLMUTTER

Union musicians went on strike against the New York City Ballet this morning for more money and work changes in a walkout that could cause a shutdown of the company for the boliday season.

Joil in ling

Since no performance is scheduled for tonight, there can be no effect of the strike until tomorrow night, when the next offering of the "Nutcracker" is scheduled is scheduled.

Any prolonged strike would be a severe financial blow to the City Bal-let, for which the annual Christmas season performances of "The Nut-cracker" are the most heavily patron-

The shutdown will be a disappointment also to many parents because the fairy-book ballet set to Tchalkov-sky's music and George Balanchine's choreography is a favorite with their children as well as the elders.

A management statement last night said: "The New York City Ballet very much regrets tha orchestra strike. All performances of The Nutcracker and the balance of the season are canceled until further notice." The 62 members of the orchestra are seeking a $75-a-week salary in-crease over three years to bring their total to $400 weekly, although management has contended that improve-ments they seek will raise their pay to $440. The union also wants an anto $440. The union also wants an an-nual work guarantee of 25 weeks in-creased to 40 weeks, and the present schedule of seven performances a week reduced to six. Management has of-fered a wage increase to $395 a week, and a guarantee of 23 weeks of work.

Solomon Kreitman, a state mediator, scheduled a meeting for 2 P.M. today of negotiators for Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians and the ballet management in an effort to get a settlement. The meeting will be held at the New York City Cen-ter offices at 1860 Broadway.

Neither side was optimistic yester-Neither side was optimistic yester-day over any early settlement of the strike. Betty Cage, general manager of the ballet company, said, "It's a head-on collision." And Leonard Leibowitz, special counsel for Local 802, said, "I see no indication of any agreement."

Recital: Art of Martina Arroyo

By PETER G. DAVIS each song, Donald Hassard's polished accompaniments provided a perfect complement

Opera singers are traditionelly pre-sumed to make poor recitalists, but Martine Arroyo disproved if not ectu-Martine Arroyo disproved if not ectu-ally reversed that theory yesterday afternoon at her Avery Fisher Hall concert by finding the recital stage more suitable to her talents. Not that Miss Arroyo is ineffective on the opera stage—her large, bright, ex-cellently schooled soprano is a natural instrument for the dramatic Italian roles, In opera, however, Miss Arroyo tends to be a coolly detached per-former who rarely seems involved with the character, either dramatically or musically. At her recital, on the other hand, she follulad nearly surry we hand, she folfilled nearly every re-quirement of the material she chose to sing, even though she was gallantly performing with a painful back condition that necessitated the use of a cane and a curtailment of the scheduled program.

Miss Arroyo sang a conventional but musically stimulating selection of classical Italian arias, lieder hy Brahms and Strauss, Spanish songs by Granados and Turina and four spirituals. Throughout the concert her voice functioned wonderfully well, the registers seamlessly knit, the quality full and even at every dynamic level. In her basic approach to the music, Miss Arroyo tended to set a mood and stick with it rather than exploring every small textual nuance in the manner of some lieder singers. One did miss a lack on tonal variety now and then, but the sound of the voice was so impressive and the interpretive decisions so intelligent that it scarcely seemed to matter.

The Italian items were given a finely chiseled line and a statuesque nobility well saited to their one-dimensional character. Especially remarkable were the mezza voce effects and controlled late Saturday afternoon lasted closer to 90 minutes. In fact, had an inter-mission been inserted after the second of the three pieces, it would have been animent, since Miss Ushioda and Mr. Nojima are two of Japan's leading artists and rarely appear together.

On Saturday they played together only in the concluding Violin Sonata No. 1 of Prokofiev; earlier Miss Ushi-oda offered Bach's Sonata No. 2 for solo violin in A minor (BWV 1003) and Mr. Nojima played Ravel's "Gaspard de la Nuit."

Perbaps the most impressive of three highly successful performances was Mr. Nojima's account of the Ravel. This was an interpretation full of the most delicate sensitivity, yet Ravel's knuckle-busting virtuoso passages were handled with silken plomb

Miss Ushioda's Bach was strong and technically elegant, although there was hardly any hint of interest in "correct" Baroque performing style. The end effect was just a bit impersonal, but so commanding that couldn't help being attractive. The Prokofiev lacked the ultimate passionate intensity, from both performers. Bnt otherwise this wa most appealing account, sympathetic to most of the composer's varied moods.

Strong Aplomb

Kazuko Hillyer's Coffee Concerts at Alice Tully Hall are supposed to be one-hour affairs, but the installment of the three pieces, it would have been a program of customary duration. Nobody was complaining, however, since this was a particularly attrac-tive occasion. The participants were Masuka Ushioda, violin, and Minoru Nojima, piano. This was hardly a typical violinist with piano accom-paniment since Mine Ushioda and Minoru

Cassim opened the scoring with a 10-foot shot at 16 minutes 5 seconds of the first. Then Juan Stapleton worked with Ed Brady on a power play with Stapleton tapping home Brady's rebound, giving the police a 2-0 lead. The firefighters scored their first goal at 19:19, on a power-play goal by Frank Baker.

The second period was scoreless, but it was noteworthy for the excellent play of Ed Walsh in the police team's goal. Twice he turned back the firemen with his team two men short.

Early in the final period, Terhune got his first goal, but the firemen made it close when Dave McClean got a power-play goal. Terhune clinched the police victory in the final minute with his second goal.

Russian-born, trained overseas and in America, Ornstein was a phenomenal pianist and a composer whose then avant-garde music gave him an international reputation. He was called a "futurist," and his vio-ient music--full of dissonances, cluster, population clusters, polyrhythms and savage onslaughts on the pland-was equated with the music of Stravin-sky, Prokofiev, Schoenberg and Bartok

But in the late 1920's he disap-peared from sight. He taught in Philadelphia, continued to compose, but made no more public appear-ances. At best, in recent years, he was little more than a vague legend, and many were surprised to dis-cover that he was still alive.

There were two sides to his music. He was capable of wild and propulsive dissonance, as in his "Danse Sauvage." But he also com-posed eclectic music that looked back as much as forward, as in his Piano Quintet and, as it turned out last night, this Piano Concerto. It was this dichotomy in his music that may have accounted for its rapid disappearance. He really represented no school, nor did he start a school. He composed as he felt, and audiences and critics, who look for consistency in a creative figure, may have found his eclecticism unsettling.

the concerto can ever become a repertory piece. Much as one wanted to cheer for this forgotten score, it was soon apparent that the musical materials were not of top quality. Yet elements were fascinating, and the writing for solo piano was intensely virtuosic. Mr. Westney handled it well. He has strong fingers, stamina (sorely needed in this taxing 33-minute work) and produces a brilliant sound. The conductor too was ca-pable. Mr. Harwood had his students playing with enthusiasm and no little finesse. It must be difficult to adjust balances in the over re-verberant Woolsey Hall, but the participants did best in the concerto and also in Kodály's "Hary Japos" Suite and Ravel's "La Janos" Valse."

As usual, the latest Simenons touched off conjecture about whether he is a novelist of Parisian manners writing mysteries or a mysterious man of hidden dimen-sions disguised behind the Maigret mask. But, there is a new series of Simenon works coming out of his skin that engages him and places punctuation marks around his present life. He has never been more excited about any project. "I am now letting off vapeur-steam," he says. "I am speaking plain words. No more electric typewriter for me. Instead, I play with my little tape recorder when the spirit moves me. Still, I believer that these books will last longer than my fiction because they concern real life and real people. Curiously, I am getting more letters about them from French readers who have read these books than from my regular Maigret readers." He relit his pipe, inscribed a book in French for a visitor with the words, "In a little rose house where I have encountered another man," and set forth on his afternoon stroll in search of others, and himself.

Steinhardt and Serkin Pair Up To Provide Musical Nourishment

By DONAL HENAHAN

A recital for violin and piano that puts Busoni and Bartók between slices of Mozart has a nourishing look to it. Under the hands of Arnold Steinhardt and Peter Serkin the program also had the sound of intellectual and musical nourishment yesterday at Alice Tully Hail, Mr. Steinhardt, who is the first violimist of the Guarneri String Quartet, found an excellent collaborator in Mr. Serkin in a recital of exceptional quality.

Two Mozart sonatas in A (K. 305 and K. 526) provided classical ballast for the program. While neither could be counted among the composer's im-mortal works, the duo spun them out with so mucb conviction and attention to detail that both beld their ground easily and sounded important. Mr. Steinhardt's tone veered more toward the beht and silvery than toward ro-

the bight and silvery than toward ro-mantic plushness, but for such 18th-century parlor pieces that was quite all right. For the Busoni Sonata No. 2 in E minor, a fatter sound might have been in order, though the classical strains running through this 19th-century music also were emphasized by the vi-

HENAHAN olinist's restrained style. The Busoni-sonata presents special problems for both players because of its stubborn refusal to stop talking when it has nothing left to say. The duo could not disguise the work's failures of econ-omy, hut its finger qualities were brought out. Mr. Serkin's deft hand-ling of intricate keyboard passages and ability to produce big, complex sonori-ties served to remind one that Busoni was primarily a virtuoso planist and then a composer.

Bartók's Sonsta No. 2, another hard piece to bold together and to make an audience like, turned out to provide the afternoon's finest moments. Mr. Serkin did not overpower the violin Serkin did not overpower the violin with percussive hammering, as Bartók planists often do, but joined in a mar-velous dialogue that grew more in-volved and involving as it went along. The instruments now merged into one voice, then spoke in flat contradiction, but never lost the thread of meaning. It is always bard to predict how two well-known musicians will function as a duo, but mark down Steinhardt-Ser-kin as one that works uncommonly well.

Randolph's Chorus in 'Messiah'

Christmas, David Randolph's Masterwork Chorus and Handel's "Messiah" have become virtually synonymous for the last 20 years in New York City. If Mr. Randolph is hecoming weary of pre-siding over this boliday ritual, be showed no signs of it Saturday night in Carnegie Hall.

Carnegie Hall. He conducted the first performance of a scheduled six; two repeats were given in Carnegie yesterday and the re-maining three will be beard at Avery Fisher Hall, twice Sunday and on Dec. 25.

Mr. Randolph has hy now firmly solidified his views of the oratorio and evidently sees no reason to change them. The chorus was of Victorian size about 150 - hut sang in a hushed, whispery style apparently meant to stimulate intimate Baroque proportions. On a purely technical level its achieve-ment was often remarkable in textural lucidity and articulation, but the choral tone sounded consistently muffled and lifeless.

The small orchestra gave an alert account of the score and adapted com-fortably to Mr. Randolpb'a rather eccentric tempos, which tended to be either extremely fast or unusually slow. On the whole, the performance seemed to unravel in an atmosphere of bland efficiency that smoothed over most of the music's expressive variety.

The four soloists — Sandra Darling, Vicki Grof, Grayson Hirst and William Metcalf — were competent out not out-standing, applying ornamentation with manoening inconsistency. Some day, perbaps Mr. Randolph can be persuaded to prepare a completely authentic Baroque "Messiah" or even go back to a full-scale 19th-century monster approach. Either would be preferable to this unconvincing compro-mise and would very likely convey a mise and would very likely convey a good deal more musical vitality. PETER G. DAVIS

Rennert-Chagall'Flute' Backat Met

By JOHN ROCKWELL

The first thing one must say about The first thing one must say about the Günther Rennert-Marc Chagali production of Mozart's "Die Zauber-flöte," which re-entered the Metropoli-tan Opera repertory Saturday night after an absence of two seasons, is that it remains as charming and magical as ever.

Not, one hastens to add, because of Mr. Rennert's stage direction (handled this time by Bodo Igesz), which is tradi-tional and not very imaginative. But because of Chagall's sets and costumes. Chagall's art may not be to every taste when it is wall. But in the scale of a stage setting, and for this opera in particular, it is just wonderful. One's only real complaint about the execution of the production was an annoying, persistent mechanical squeaking that seemed to emanate from the ceiling of the house.

with the company. Mr. Ulfung is one of the finest actors in opera, and his or the finest actors in opera, and its conception here, all puckish and cat-like, was much different from the Nazi monster he created for Ingmar Berg-man's film. And it was sung with just the right likeness and teasing rhythmicality.

Donald Gramm's Papageno was also very fine, and perhaps it will reach this level in later performances. On Saturday Mr. Gramm sounded ill at ease, especially toward the beginning, and fell consistently out of consistently out of sync with

The cast this time is huilt on the same pairings that distinguished it dur-ing the 1973-74 season—Benita Valente as Pamina and Stuart Burrows as Tamino. Mr. Burrows was sounding a bit more swallowed and effortful than usual on Saturday, and he is always a stiff stick on stage. But he still has that boneyed elegance of tone. Misa Valente was better than ever, pouring out her heantifully focused, clear yet full soprano with exquisite phrasings throughout. The other incontestably superior performance came from Ragnar Ulfung, who was singing his first Monostatos the orchestra. And for all the excellence of his singing and acting, one suspects that he is ultimately too complex an artist for an ideal portrayal of Papageno's earthy heartiness.

Standards decline from here. John Macurdy sang weakly and colorlessly as Sarasto; Colette Boky, a substitute for an indisposed Rita Shane, was pale and inaccurate above the staff as the Queen of the Night and Loretta Di Franco made an only functional Papagena.

gena. The conductor was the 26-year-old James Conlon, in his Met debut. He did a serviceable if not yet very distinctive job, setting generally brisk, fairly rigid tempos and eliciting chean playing from the conduction. the orchestra. No doubt he will relax and grow into the music, but for all his undoubted promise, it does seem odd that be is being allowed to do that growing at the Met.

The total sales of all foreign-owned companies in the United States amount to only about 2 percent of all corporate sales. Of all the manufacturing plants in this rountry calls in 2 percent this country, only 1 to 2 percent are for-eign-owned, according to another earlier study made by the Conference Board for the Commerce Department.

"The foreign presence in the United States economy is nowhere near the level experienced in most other industrial countries," says David Bauer, an econo-mist at the board, which is a private busi-ness research organization.

The new study also found that most of the leading foreign-owned concerns have been in this country for years, and that ownership is dominated by Euro-peans and Canadians. Twenty-five of the 100 are owned by British investors, 24 by Canadian nine by German, sight by by Canadian, nine by German, eight by French, eight by Swiss, seven by Dutch, and foor by Japanese.

Moreover, American citizens own a large portion of the shares of some of the foreign companies stock, particularly the Canadian companies. In 1975, more than half of the stock of Alcan Alumini-um Ltd. of Montreal, to cite an extreme example, was owned by United States residents.

NEW STUDY MADE IN 8 CITIES

Analysis Shows Major Concern Have Improved Substantially in Hiring of Women

By EILEEN SHANAHAN fal to The New York The

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12-A new study of employment practices in banking showed that minority men were still en-countering extreme difficulty in obtaining jobs at any level in large banks, although these same banks have improved consid-erably in the extent to which they employ women, including minority women, in all except the very top jobs. The new study, entitled, "Shortchanged/ Update," analyzes the employment records, as of 1975, of the three largest banks in each of eight cities—Atlanta, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadeiphia, San Francisco and Washing-ton, D.C. It updates an earlier study de-scribing 1971 employment practices of most of the same banks. It was published by the Council on Eco-nomic Priorities, an independent research, organization based in New York City and: was done by Tina Simcich, a research associate at the council, whose studies on corporate and government perform-nce have won widespread respect. Use increased in Top Categories

The study showed that every one of the banks for which 1971 data were avails, able—21 of the 24 with respect to minority employment and 22 of the 24 with espect to women-have increased their utilization of minorities and women in the two top job categories, officers and managers and professional, technical and sales workers.

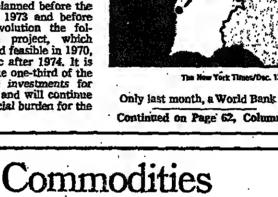

The rates of improvement varied greatlv. however.

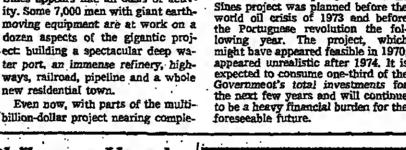

For example, the three largest New York banks, Chase Manhatten, First Na-tional City Bank and Manufecturers Hanover Trust Company, which ranked, in ninth, seventh and third, respectively, in ... 1971 in their use of women in the two ... top job classifications, ranked 21st, 17th ... ad 10th respectively, in 1975.

"These banks' previously good records have been surpassed by many other banks around the country," the study said

On the other hand, two of the three, a biggest New York banks improved their already good relative positions with re-a-spect to their use of minorities in the to top jobs. Manufacturers Hanover, which --bad ranked fourth in 1971 ranked third. in 1975, and Chase Manhattan, which had ranked fifth in 1971, ranked fourth last. year. Citibank, on the other hand, fell from third to 13th.

For example, a March 1978 silver buy option, worth, say, $4.50 an ounce or $45,000 an option today might carry a premium of 25 cents an ounce. If so, the option buyer will pay $2500 for the right to buy that corn $2,500 for the right to buy that contract, plus commission.

Continuing this example, the price of silver must rise to at least $4.75 an ounce on or before the first business day of March 1978 for the option owner to break even (leaving aside commissions).

For its part, Shearson Hayden Stone will collect the preinium and turn it over to Mocatta Metals, which would segregate the money until the option is exercised or expires.

Shearson's commission will be $100 an option-the same charge as for two standard 5,000-ounce silver futures con-tracts-plus $50 more if the option proves proiftable and is exercised by the owner. Initially, Shearson will accept minimum orders of five options.

ham, are more recent entries. The growing acceptance of the products, according to poultry processors, Is due in large part to their being lower in fat and cholesterol, and higher in protein, than comparable red meat products. Another added benefit is that they are cheeper. Baked turkey ham, for instance, sold recently for $1.38 a pound wholesale to New York area

By RONA CHERRY supermarkets, while pork ham ranged from $1.42 to $1.98 a pound.

With beef prices projected to go up an average of 10 cents a pound in 1977, according to the Department of Agriculture, poultry processors feel that more consumers will be tempted to try their products instead of processed beef items. As a result, they be-lieve that the meat industry is more alarmed now about increasing competition than ever before.

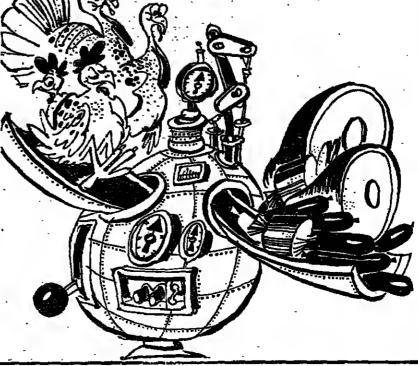

The presence of the processed poul-try products in supermarkets and deli-catessens has touched off a controversy having nothing to do with their taste or texture, but cantering on their names.

Now that President-elect Jimmy Carter has eased union fears of wage ceilings by disavowing any form of mandatory anti-inflstico controls, his most ticklish problems with organized labor are likely to involve foreign trade and the development of Government policies affecting multinational corporations.

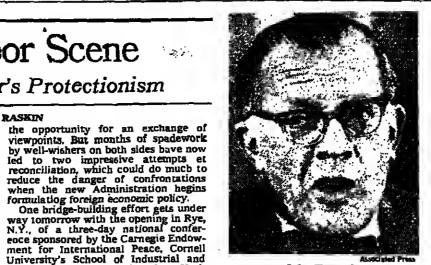

Unions, once in the vanguard of pres-sure to relax tariff barriers and promote free trade, are now fiercely protectionist in the belief that imports are eliminating jobs in the United States. Increasingly they are teaming up with employers in their industries to lobby for quotas on foreign goods.

When it comes to overseas operations hy American corporate giants, the partnership collepses and labor campaigns alooe for curbs on the transfer of United States funds, managerial talent and technological know-how to affiliates in Europe and the Orient.

The union view, as summed up at a recent State Department conference by Willism W. Winpisinger. chief of staff of the International Association of Machinists, is that existing American policy makes it more profitable for domestic corporations to put plants in Indonesia or Malaysia than in Illinois or Massachusetts. The result, labor contends, is to export domestic jobs while s million owork. 8 million Americans walk the streets

The intensity of unioo concern on these issues and the certainty that labor's voice will get a respectful hear-ing at tha White House and oo Capitol Hill io the months ahead has made the foreign policy community in Washing-ton and New York, loog oblivious to abor's political clout in international affsirs, suddenly and acutely aware of the desirability of openiog up a dialogue with union leaders.

Barbara Jordan Backed By Meany for Cabinet

George Meany has been reluctant to trade on labor's pivotal election role by pushing Cabioet suggestions on Mr. Carter, but that reluctaoce has not kept the A.F.L.-C.I.O. chief from letting the President-elect know whom he would like to see as Attorney General. His strong fsvorite for that job is Represeo-

It did not take Miss Jordan's stirring performance as keynoter at the Democratic convection last July or her earli-er stellar role in the Nixon impeachment debate to make the 82-year-old union pstriarch eothusiastic about her. He has been high on Miss Jordan ever sioce she spoke at the A.F.L.-C.I.O.'s

Miss Jordan's merits to head the Justice Department are being pressed hard by labor's representative on the Carter nomiostions advisory committee, Mr. Kirkland. The response so far is that several candidates are still under consideration.

Advertising How Children Learn: Print vs. TV

THE NEW YORK TIMES, MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1976

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY

Television is causing the upper and lower socio-economic levels in Ameri-can society to drift apart—that's the opinion of Dr. Herr'ert E. Krugman of the General Electric Company, a re-spected Psychologist and marketing re-searcher searcher.

Long interested in how people learn, he theorized in a recent interview that children whose first learning experi-ence comes from television are not as able to use the full range of their intel-lectual abilities as are those from a. higher socio-economic level supplied with books earlier in life.

The advertising implications of this, he said, are that "in time in order to reach the high socio-economic levels, the people with more money to spend, efficient advertisers must put their money into print-magazines.

He believes that the W. R. Simmons

Associates media imperativea study has already shown the drift to be happen-ing. "We looked at those with high involvement in print, versus television, and we find an enormous class difference," he said.

Dr. Krugman joined General Electric in 1967, having previously done re-search at Interpublic's Marpian, at Ted Bates & Company and with Raymond Loewy, the designer. Working on the corporate level at G.F., he supervises the surveys that track consumer atti-tudes toward the corporation as well as consumer attitudes toward public issues. And he continually pursues the question of how people learn.

That interest has in the past involved him in research into eye movement, the more people are learning, be said, ex-plaining that with reading there is eye movement hut with TV the eyes simply focus on the screen

"We are supposing low involvement was related to less brain activity," he said. "When the eye stops, a lot of things stop."

Dr. Krugman, who did some early experimenting on brain wave reaction to different media, saw some of his theories proved by Dr. Roger W. Sperry, who showed that the left hemisphere of the brain handles reading and abstract thought while the right handles images and pictures. But the key to learning from the media is tied to gross eye movement, Dr. Krugman believes, and if TV directors created programs or commercials that forced viewers' eyes to move instead of having the camera do all the work, the viewers would learn more from the tube.

Gauging Ads in Advance

Erisco Inc., which offers a relatively inexpensive method of measuring the effectiveness of television commercials before production, has begun an inten-sive chilling effort in New York. For its first seven years the company, with corporate headquarters in Los Angeles and operating headquarters in Cleveand has concentrated its efforts in the West and Midwest.

What it is selling is its Emotional Response Index System, the heart of which is a data bank containing the

The TV Squeeze. How to get out of it.

Everyone's feeling the TV Squeeze. Network costs are up as much as 35% for prime time-that's if you can find availabilities at all.

According to the October 25th issue of Advertising Age, "Major national advertisers, whose reactions have varied from 'very concerned' to 'appalled' at today's sharply higher television prices, are grimly continuing to buy while either moving or threatening to move into other media."

W.R. Simmons study, this group includes 33.4% of all adults, half of all executives and professionals, and 46% of the people with household incomes of $15,000 plus. It's a market that most advertisers can't afford to overlook.

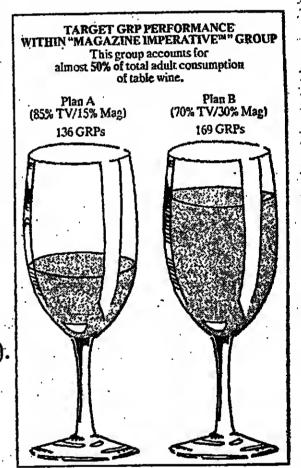

مجلدا من الأجل

Adjusting your Magazine/TV mix can help you beat the Squeeze.

Let's assume you're marketing table wine. The Simmons study indicates that almost half of the wine users fall in the "Magazine Imperatives" group, and they account for 50% of the total volume. For a wine advertiser to reach this market, magazines are an imperative media buy.

But to what extent? Newsweek recently analyzed the national media schedule of a wine company that concentrated heavily in TV. The company spent about $5,621,500 in network television and magazines. However, only 15% of this, or $688,500, went for magazine advertising.

A computer run analyzed the wine advertiser's average fourweek national media plan: 85% television and 15% magazines (Plan 'A'). A second computer run, using the same TV programs and magazines, increased the magazine budget to 30%, decreased television to 70% (Plan 'B'). Which plan worked better?

REMEMBER THE NEEDIEST?

Advertisers have long recognized the strengths of a Magazine/TV mix.

The two media complement each other demographically and in the way each communicates. In many cases you can get more GRPs, increase frequency and lower your CPM by shifting from an All-TV plan to one that includes magazines like Newsweek.

Impossible? Not when you remember that combinations of magazines-even single magazines like Newsweek - can deliver the same kind of big ratings you expect from TV. When it comes to size of audience, magazines can match the best television has to offer.

For example, Newsweek's rating of 16.7 (men 18 to 49) beats just about every new show this season-it even beats old standbys like All in the Family and Welcome Back, Kotter. And with TV's rising prices, Newsweek-and magazines in general-now offer considerable cost-perthousand advantages. What's more, with magazines you reach more of the people now referred to as "Magazine Imperatives"": heavy magazine readers and relatively light viewers of TV. According to the Plan 'B' showed an 8% increase in GRPs, and a 7% increase in reach. There was even a slight increase in frequency.

Source: 1974/75 Simmons; 1976/77 Simmons wine data not yet available.

Even more impressive (see chart above) was the effect of Plan 'B' against the "Magazine Imperatives" group (almost 50% of the users). Plan 'B' increased GRPs by 24% (169 vs. 136), increased reach by 10% and increased frequency by 14%.

Whether you're marketing table wine, radial tires, airline seats, insurance or beer, re-adjusting your Magazine/TV mix can give you better results.

the premium cost plus the commission. Commodity futures bayers, on the other hand, usually pay initial margins of about 10 percent of the commodity they are buying or selling and must be constantly prepared to maintain those margins or be wbipsawed out of their holdings in times of volatile price swings, Eventually, gold and other commodi-terials such as grains, soybeans and cotton. However, an act of Congress will be required to permit option dealings in farm products.

The reason is that Coogress barred domestic option trading in all but "for-eign" commodities during the early New Deal days of the nioeteen thirties because of widespread shady practices. Ironically, this opened the door to many more fraudulent practices by brokers claiming to offer options based on com-modities traded in London.

Receatly, the Federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission decided to tackle the problem by allowing licensed brokers to offer optimus oo raw materials traded in London if the source of the items was reputable and could be supervised in this country. The resumption of options trading in the United States is expected to diminish the London market, which often lacks liquidity and which has also been plagued by the falling value of the pound. Many ontwardly profitable op-tions in coffee and cocca in London have been adversely affected by the drop in sterling's value this year, for example.

Should the new options become popular, both Dr. Jarecki and Mr. Leibler expect the commodity futures industry to benefit because of the multitude of bedging possibilities employ-ing both instruments that they foresee. These futures-options hedges are ex-pected to become more apparent when the Government allows exchanges to set up markets for commodity options similar to the highly succesful ones in similar to the highly successful ones in stock options. mer. "Chicago's commodity exchanges are ready to go with options on a mo-ment'a notice," one broker said last week. "But Washingtoo wants to give the scattered New York exchanges a first one of organized under one fair chance to get organized under one roof."

Another brokerage executive said that the addition of more options to the present silver and copper would depend largely on finding suppliers willing and able to create bighly liquid markets in their commodities. He added sultant, Bela Balassa, warned against the danger of a "serious misallocatioo" of Portugal's meeger resources in Sines. He urged the Government to make a rigorous economic analysis of the project and cut back wherever possible.

"The Sines project made sense when it was planned but of course if we could start over today, we wouldn't plan such huge dimensions," Jorge Goncalves, a director of Petrogal, the state-owned oil company, responds. He points out that it would cost more to change the project now than to continue it. At eny rate, in three or four years, the refinery will not be too big for national needs, he emphasizes,

$3.7 Billion Investment

The total investment in Sines will be more than 110 billion escudos ($3.7 billion) or about three times original estimates, according to the latest re-vised projection by the Sines Development Agency.

This includes over $1 biliion in facilities-essentially a deep-water port with moorings for giant tankers, as well as terminals for petroleum products, minerals and general cargo; water supply, electric power, bighways, and housing. An additional $83 million will go into a new railroad link from Sines to the Lishon-Setubal line, Finally more than $2.5 hillion have been slated for industrial projects: a refinery, petrochemical complex, fertilizer complex, an intergrated pyrite processing plant, steel mill and a chlorine plant.

Sines Chosen for Advantages

The Sines project took form at the beginning of this decade when Portu-gal's right-wing dictatorship decided on the need for a grandiose development project to revive the stagnant economy. The central idea of the project was not so much the industrial complex but the deep-water port, which was designed to serve as an international transshipment port for oil tankers and many European ports cannot accommodate large carriers. Therefore the need for a deep-water port for transshipmen

The fishing village of Sines, 90 miles south of Lisbon, was selected as the best site for the project because it is on the main navigation routes and has a protective cape and a deep-water cove. Other advantages were available low-cost land, a rock quarry on the shore and important pyrite deposits in the hinterland.

Portugal's giant holding Companhia Uniao Fabril, known as CUF, and other industrial groups obtained export credits from France, West Germany and Belgium for the Sines project. Universal Oil Products, an American com-pany, won the contract for the basic design of the refinery and the British-French company Procontechnip got the contract to build it. The Linde concern of Munich is building a steam cracking plant with a 300,000-ton capacity for petrochemical products, and an Italian engineering company, Condotte, is building the port building the port.

Evaluation by American Economists

Serious doubts about the economic profitability of the Sines project arose after the 1973 oil crisis, which brought radical changes in the market demand for petroleum and petroleum products, as well as a cutback in the use of giant tankers. But as there was official censorship, the doubts did not merge into public debate: On April 25, 1974, the captains over-threw the dictatorship in a bloodless revolution, which was followed by months of social and political upheaval and finally, in the spring of 1975, the nationalization of the banks, insurance companies and basic industry-including the companies involved in Sines.

Early last year the Government asked the American economists Richard Eck-haus and Lance Taylor to make a comprehensive evaluation of the major projects under construction or planned Sines. The essential conclusions of the detailed report were;

There is now no economic justification for such a large-scale port in

The railroad project should be pu aside because more detailed studies show that coastwise shipping is essen tially more economical because it ca be adjusted to transportation demands The petroleum refinery should t cut in half to 5-million-ton capacit because it will come onstream at a tim of excess capacity in European market and would be too large for nations :... demands.

The fertilizer project, aimed at et at competitive costs with the nature gas and petroleum-producing countries .

The petrochemical complex may b marginally profitable if the platketing channels abroad assured, nap tha was availabla in sufficient suppand chlorine , could be obtained reasonable cost.

¶Careful cost-benefit studies ai market studies should be made of t project's other industrial undertaking keeping in mind that they are general capital-intensive, whereas Portugal s fers from high unemployment. The Government banned the reles of the Eckhaus Taylor report, But the were leaks and the Communist pr published large excerpts.

The findings of the report brought no immediate action from the Gove ment but raised new doubte about. fate of the project.

"The long period of uncertain caused serious delays in the plann of the other industrial projects and the construction of worker bousin" Vitor Marcal, technical engineer for Sines project, said, as he showed vet tors facilities of the port, which is ready partly operational.

"Work never stopped on the refine but progress was slow," Mr. Parrint, an engineer, said, citing the agitati of the last year and a balf as the print. pal cause of delay. There were conting

Just Who Is Running Utica? Mayor and Police Slug It Out

By MOLLY IVINS Special to The New York Thursd

UTICA, Dec. 12-When the Chief of last week, the Mayor suspended the Chief. threatened to shut the Police Department break into the Chief's office. entirely and call in the National Guard. All of which led The Utica Observer-Dispatch to print a mortified front-page editorial this morning saying, in effect, "Oh good grief, everybody's laughing at us again.

"What is important," opined the paper, "and many had begun to believe that The mayor realized this, is that such simple problems are settled by adult people rather easily."

But Edward Hanna, the maverick Mayor of Utica, does not count reasonable com-promise as one of the virtues, as the paper presumably knows, since the Mayor's theme song, "I Did It My Way," booms out of the city's carillon every half hour.

'Happens All the Time'

"It's what happens all the time in politics," he said in a not very muted roar. When Mayor Hanna gets excited, which is frequently, he operates at only , two levels-loud and very loud.

The whole brouhaba started when Prince Fahad of Saudi Arabia visited Utica recently as the Mayor's guest. "I took him out nightclubbing, just to show Prince were propositioned at a couple of the clubs they visited.

"They knew I was the Mayor!" b raged. "We had a police escort with us I had my wife with me!"

The incident set the Mayor off on an antiprostitution crusade, and he wanted to check Police Department records. He was also on a tear about what he said was discrimination and favoritism in granting police permits.

the records. When he got no satisfaction, Saturday. he sent two city lawyers down to talk to i

The Mayor did not want to wait, so he Police had the Mayor of Utica arrested called a locksmith, went with him to the police station and ordered the fellow to

Mayor Stands Accused

Acting on orders telephoned by the Chief, who was by this time at home, officers at the station arrested the Mayor and the locksmith on felony burglary charges. Considerable confusion ensued

Members of the Corporation Counsel's staff were racing around, looking up assorted laws that showed the Mayor had a right to inspect the records. The police refused to listen.

Mr. Mascaro called a judge. The charges were reduced to misdemeanor criminal trespass. The Mayor was eventually released without being booked or fingerprinted, and the charge against him is apparently in limbo. The locksmith was thrown into jail.

The Mayor meanwhile was announcing the suspension of all the officers in-volved; they paid no attention. When he finally got home that night, Mr. Hanna "There's always somebody trying to make everybody happy," be said at very loud. "This guy gets his 20 percent, that guy gets his 20 percent, another guy gets his 20 percent, and so on. So they all settle things down and smooth things asid, he received a threatening phone call from a policeman who dared him to set foot in Police Headquarters again. So, naturally, the Mayor appeared there at 8:30 the next morning, this time asking for a roster of those on duty and over the matter of wbether the Mayor has the right to inspect police records on prostitution and gun permits. One hapless member of the City Corporation Counsel's staff took a statement to the Mayor on Friday that said the Mayor would drop the suspensions of the Chief and four other officers if he received access to the Police Department records. The Mayor tore up the statement and went into very loud for a prolonged aight.

Mr. Fusco returned with a curious tale. "First," he said, "I knocked on the Chief's door and told him that in my capacity as Commissioner of Public Satebim I was a regular guy, you know?" ty I wanted to see the departments said Mr. Hanna. The Mayor reported he records. He said no. The next time I was genuinely outraged when he and the knocked, he slammed the door in my face. The third time I knocked, h wouldn't open the door at all.

"Next thing, all these officers started carrying hammers and screwdrivers and a crowbar into the Chief's office. I understand the crowbar was used to pry the window open. I don't know whether they were moving the records from the office through the window or not."

Chief Rotundo did not care to speak with the press.

On Thursday afternoon, he called Chief The Mayor, who often speaks in hyper-Rotundo three times, asking to look at bole, spent almost four hours fummg

"They are so brazen, they are so tlathe Chief. According to Corporation grant, they are so arrogant," be said like and injuring 16, the police said today. Counsel Joe Mascaro, the Chief did not "The Police Department of this city uses the bus went into the river after the actually refuse to show the records to the Mayor, but he said be had an appoint- we have civilian control in this city or pedestrians crossing the road, the police ment and couldn't wait.

BROOKLYN MAN, 35, IS HELD IN DEATH OF HIS MOTHER, 72

A 35-year-old Brooklyn man was being held by the police yesterday in the beat-ing death of his elderly mother. Half of a poolcue was found in the apartment where the two had lived, at 371 13th Street; near the Gowanus Canal, the police said, adding that they believed John Aloi had used it to beat his mother, Josephine Aloi, 72, to death Mrs. Aloi's sister, Rose D'Amato, whose age was not known, was also attacked by the man, the police said they believed, and the woman was taken to Aethodist Hospital in serious condition with injuries to her head and arms. Mr. Aloi's aunt had also been living in the house.

Neighbors of the family said that Mr. Aloi bad had a serious drinking problem for a number of years, fighting with his family and breaking windows in the bouse several times. The police added they believed Mr. Aloi had recently un-dergone detoxification treatment.

Electoral College to Hold Its Quadrennial Sessions And Name Carter Today

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)-The Electoral College meets tomorrow in 50 states and the District of Columbia to elect Jimmy Carter of Georgia as President of the United States. The Electoral College meets on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December. The meetings take place in the state capitals and the results will be sent to Washington, where the certificates will be opened by Vice President Rockefeller on Jan. 6 before a joint session of Con-

If the elctors follow the script, Mr. Carter will get the 297 electoral votes he won in the Nov. 2 election, and President Ford will get the other 241. Then Mr. Rockefeller will declare Mr. Carter the President-elect.

The last suspense ws eliminated from the electoral ceremony last Thursday when Federal judges in Ohio and Texas refused to sign orders to stop Carter electors from meeting in those states.

The Ohio challenge was filed by members of the Republican, American and U.S. Labor Parties who charged that the election there had been marred by frand. Two independent voters in Texas had complained that they were denied the right to vote for candidates other than those on the ballot.

A challenge is still on appeal in Wis-consin, but the State Supreme Court has ordered the Carter victory there certified. A challenge in New York was dismissed Friday.

A recount is under way in Oregon, which Ford carried by a narrow margin, but the electors will meet on schedule. The Electoral College, created at the constitutional convention of 1787 in Philadelphia, was intended as a delibera-tive body that would make its own deci-sion on the choice of a President. But with the development of national political parties, which soon learned to field slates of electors bound to individual Presidential candidates, the institution has been largely an archaic formality.

thing," Mr. Callec says, in his still-ac-cented English. "I could buy the French-American newspaper at the candy store. Lots of stores. Subway and bus. There was a little park, a triangle, in the middle of the main triangle, in the middle of the main street. All the old people used to sit and talk. Nothing like that out here." Eighteen months ago Mr. Callec's world was turned upside down when his wife died. (He will show a snapshot of a handsome young woman with a smile that da Vinci might have painted, and wearing a loog black dress; Mr. Callec has written the word "Died" on the back.) He met her in Brittany when they were 3 years old. His father worked for her father, and one day the boss told his employee, "Your son will marry my daughter." He did, and the marriage lasted more than half a ceotury.

ceotury. While in the French Navy in 1915, Mr. Callec was on a ship that was tor-pedoed at Gallipoli, Turkey, and he spent three hours in the water. He came to New York in 1921, "for one year," to learn to speak English, and he worked as a bartender at many good hotels. He became accustomed to the attached houses and little shops of Elmhurst, which is probably closer in tone to a working-class section of Paris than it is to North Shore Acres.

Another Generation

Bot the next generatioo hecame aware of the different life evolving east of the city.

"To me, suhurbia represented America," said Janine Grange, Mr. Callec's danghter. "I was born in France, hut of course 1 am totally an Americao. It seemed that every Anglo-Saxon American lived in the suburbs.

"My hushand was the chef at Cami-nan's in Locust Valley. He kept telling me how beautiful it was out there on the North Shore, so we bought this house. Now my husband is working at the Sherry-Netherland in the city, taking the train every day. You oever know, do you?" Mr. Callec was lonely when he first moved oot here, and he talked of going back to Elmhurst. It is quite common for older people to feel disengaged when they move in with family in the when they move in with family in the suburbs, according to social workers who deal with the elderly. But Mrs. Grange says, "I know we did the right thing when I read about what is hap-pening to old people in the city"— meaning the violence inflicted by youthful robbers.

that, when asked for an interview, they made an appointment several weeks in advance. Other elderly people ride bicycles, play golf or continue to work. For Mr. Callec, however, the big event of the day is to stroll to Glen Cove Avenue to buy bread or milk at the 7-11 store, open around the clock, just outside the entrance to North Shore Acres. (There is no on-premises bakery in Glen Head to satisfy the Gal-lic passion for fresh hread.) Sometimes lic passion for fresh hread.) Sometimes he walks two miles to the little down-town section of Glen Head, where he gets his hair cut, just to have some place to visit.

"I can't buy a French newspaper out here," he says. "But my son-in-law brings it home from the city."

Making Acquaintances

Making Acquaintances His family is adjusting to the suburbs. His grandson, Paul, a commercial artist, loves jogging and walking in the quiet hills. Mrs. Grange is slightly hemused hy the busy, separate lives in the development. Last June some-body said, "Have a nice summer" to her, as if assuming their husy paths would out cross soon again. would oot cross soon again.

By walking around the development, Mr. Callec has been discovered by maoy people. When Kay Constant, a county museum official, meotioned that she was of Greek origin, he proudly told of docking at Salonika 60 years ago. Ruth Neumann invited him to take walks at the county nature preserva in Muttootown, where she works.

in Muttootown, where she works. George Dade, an aviatioo enthusiast who recently rebuilt Charles A. Lind-bergh's first plane, showed Mr. Callec a picture of himself with Mr. Lindbergh in 1927. Mr. Callec was thrilled to tell how his first boss, Raymond Orteig, had put up the $25,000 prize for Mr. Lindbergh's historic flight, and how his wife, a dressmaker at Bloomingdale's, had once made a dress for Anne Morhad once made a dress for Anne Mor-row Lindbergh's mother.

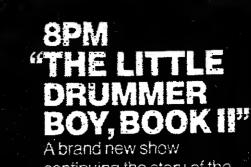

One couple, Oliver and Betty McCurdy, Invited Mr. Callec to have hrunch with them and chat in French, hut he declined.

"Very important people," he said, (Mr. McCurdy is a textile agent; Mrs. McCurdy teaches music in the Glen Cove schools.) "But I am a working man. I stay in my place. Very nice people. Very busy."

Perry Como A soothing tranquilizer the holiday season can demand an unusual amount of soothing. This year, Mr. Como is offering "Christmas in Austria," which can be seen on NBC tonight at 10 (given the fact that this is "family entertainment" in the best sense of that maligned concept, the late hour seems rather strange, but the network doubtlessly has its ratings reasons). Produced, directed and written by Stephen Pouliot, the hour offers a sumptuous tour of Austria, from Salzburg to Vienna, from the skiing village of Dienten to tiny Arnsdorf and the church where Franz Gruber

2D ABSOLUTION RITE HELD IN TENNESSEE

72

2,000 Attend Service Conducted at Civic Center to Reconcile Catholics With the Church

Special to The New York Three

JACKSON, Tenn., Dec. 12-About 2,000 Roman Catholics, many of whom had been separated from the church for years, jammed into the Jackson Civic Center this afternoon for services offering general absolution for their sins, a sacrament traditionally reserved for those facing grave danger or death.

The service was the second of two rites of reconciliation in west Tennessee providing the first opportunity in years for some Roman Catholics to participate in communion.

The service also marked the first step for those separated from the church hy divorce or other problems to be reunited with their parishes.

The mass was celebrated by Bishop Carroll T. Dozier of the Memphis Diocese, who last week offered general absolution to 12,000 Catholics participating m simi-lar ceremonies at the Mid-South Coliseum in Memphis.

Arranged Services Last Summer

Bishop Dozier, 65 years old, arranged for the services last summer after they were made possible hy the church hierarchy. He said that the mass had generateo "a tremendous feeling of good will aod happiness" among Catholics.

But he complained that publicity about the unusual offering of general absolution had focused on the plight of the estimated three million Catholics who had divorced and remarried, and he shunned questions on how the services might hring them hack into the church.

The Bishop did say, however, that the ceremonies would not erase all prohiems. The doctrinal harriers keeping some Catholics from the church still must be "worked out" in the parishes, be said. During the mass, Bishop Dozier told the congregation that there were those who "criticize what we are doing here today as if it were outside the concept of Jesus."

Later, he said the ceremonies were "much higger" than the offering of abso-lution because they encompassed reconciliation of all Catholics.

"That's what Csrist is all about." said.

The dress of the congregation varied from blue jeans to jewels and furs, and the mood was one of joy and friendship. At two points the ceremony called for members of the congregation to shake hands with others nearby and to extend wishes of "peace and good will."

Some who came to the services wept during the ceremony or while taking communion

Bishop Dozier told the assembly, as he had in Memphis, that "in times past. all of us have been hurt and all of us have hurt; now we ask forgiveness as we forgive each other."

He continued: "We will truly make the Diocese of Memphis the good samaritan on the hanks of the Mississippi, pouring all the mercy and love unto our fellow men, healing those whom we can reach." Those entering the Civic Center were

Refuses to Estimate Effect

A Gallup poll has estimated that as many as 15 percent of the nation's 65 million Catholics are inactive, a finding, the Bishop said, that indicates that 15,000 men and women in the West Tennessee Diocese may no longer he attending church services.

Bishop Dozier would not say whether other bishops should follow his example to bring inactive Catholics back into the church inactive Catholics. And he de-clined to estimate what effect the serv-ices might have had in rekindling church participation among the Catholics who attended the ceremonies in Memphis and Jackson.

"Aa in all things spiritual, that's dif-ficult to estimate," the Bishop said.

Many who attended the service today expressed high hopes and pleasant feel-ings afterterward. One of them, Helen Buchholz of Jackson, who is a practicing Catholic, said, "I thought it was beautiful. I'm sure there's quite a lot of people here who haven't been going to church in quite a while.'

It was difficult, however, to find anyone in attendance who would admit to having been away from the church.

San Quentin Will Enforce Policy of Barring Pets; Range of Problems Cited

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Dec. 12 (UPI)-The cats, dogs, mice, hirds, fish and snakes kept as pels by inmates at San Quentin Prison will not be there much longer

As of Jan, 1, the prison will start enforcing its policy of oarring pets in the prison, and inmates will have to give them to friends or relatives or risk having them picked up by the Humane Society

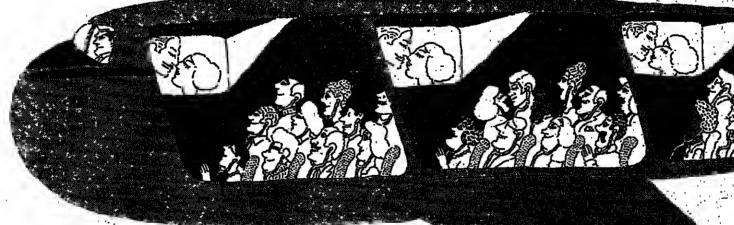

"The cat population has skyrocketed, said a prison spokesman, Bill Merkle. "There are a lot of cats on the waterfront, on the ranch and in the warehouse area. As on any big farm-we have 460 acres-cats breed on the hills, in ditches and in warehouses."

Mr. Merkle estimated that for every prisoner who likes cats, there are five who do not, adding that the pets have been the catalyst for a number of fights. Among the reasons for banning the pets are objectionable odors, the lack of veterinary facilities and occasional animal bites.

On one occasion, Mr. Merkle said, a cat bit a patient in the prison bospital, and another cat bit the 5-year-old son of a prison officer.

Goldfish were "a big thing" among inmates a few years ago, he said. "They weren't smuggled in," he recalled. "We have a lot of fish ponds—one in the chapel patio, a few in the landscaped areas in the industrial section. The men would fish them out to make pets of them. But currently goldfish aren't a prohlem because the sea gulls got them. Pet mice are a problem, he explained, hecause, like cats, they multiply. And they also cause sanitary problems.
